

*Reconstructing
Twentieth-Century
China*

State Control, Civil Society, and National Identity

Edited by

KJELD ERIK BRØDSGAARD
and
DAVID STRAND

CLARENDON PRESS OXFORD
1998

Contents

List of Contributors	ix
1 Introduction Kjeld Erik Brodsgaard and David Strand	1
I. STATE CONTROL
2 Calling the Chinese People to Order: Sun Yat-sen's Rhetoric of Development David Strand	33
3 The Essence of Contemporary Chinese Bureaucracy: Socialism, Modernization and Political Culture Ryosei Kokubun	69
4 Control as Care: Interaction between Urban Women and Birth Planning Workers Cecilia Milwertz	92
5 Ownership and Community Interest in China's Rural Enterprises Susan Young	113
II. CIVIL SOCIETY
6 Reconstructing Society: Liang Shuming and the Rural Reconstruction Movement in Shandong Stig Thogersen	139
7 Bases for Civil Society in Reform China Thomas Gold	163
8 State and Society in Hainan: Liao Xun's Ideas on 'Small Government, Big Society' Kjeld Erik Brodsgaard	189
9 Is a Participant Culture Emerging in China? Torstein Hjellum	216
III. NATIONAL IDENTITY
10 Party Policy and 'National Culture': Towards a State-Directed Cultural Nationalism in China? Soren Clausen	253

11	Fostering 'Love of Learning': Nazi Responses to Ethnic Images in Chinese State Education Mette Halskov Hansen	280
12	China Deconstructs? The Future of the Chinese Empire-State in a Historical Perspective Harald Bockman	310
	Index	347