

Lead the Work

Navigating a World
beyond Employment

John Boudreau
Ravin Jesuthasan
David Creelman

WILEY

Contents

Foreword	xvii
Acknowledgments	xxi
PART ONE    The Background	1
Chapter 1 Leading Work—Not Managing Employees	3
Chapter 2 Free Agent World	23
Chapter 3 Outsourcing and Alliances	35
Chapter 4 The Talent Platforms	50
PART TWO    The Model	81
Chapter 5 Leading the Work Beyond Employment:
A Decision Framework	83
Chapter 6 How IBM Leads the Work	92
Chapter 7 The Assignment: How Much to Deconstruct, Disperse, and Detach?	111
Chapter 8 The New Organization: Permeable, Interlinked, Collaborative, and Flexible	135
Chapter 9 The Reward: Short-Term, Individualized, and Imaginative	153

PART THREE	Implications	175
Chapter 10	Future HR Practices in Leading the Work	177
Chapter 11	Future HR Outcomes in Leading the Work	206
Chapter 12	Governance and Stakeholders	219
Chapter 13	Nations, Citizens, and Children	238
About the Authors		255
Index		257