

IN SACRED PLACES

THE POLITICS OF CULTURE IN NICARAGUA

DAVID E. WHISNANT

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments, xi

Introduction, 1

PART ONE. The Past as Prologue: From Conquest to Dictatorship

1. Beautiful and Pleasant Land:

Culture and Cultural Change before Independence, 13

2. Rascally Signs in Sacred Places:

The Politics of Cultural Change in the Nineteenth Century, 54

PART TWO. Building a Cultural Apparatus: Somocistas and Sandinistas

3. He Had an Odd Accent in Spanish:

Culture and the Somoza Dictatorship, 107

4. Anything but Flowers:

Culture and Resistance to the Somoza Dictatorship, 151

5. Culture as Revolution, Revolution as Culture:

The Sandinista Cultural Project, 189

6. Political Theories and Cultural Realities:

Opposition to Sandinista Cultural Policy and Programs, 236

PART THREE. Four Case Studies

7. Looting the Past:

The Removal of Antiquities in the Nineteenth Century, 273

8. A Prodigious Child of Nicaragua:

Ruben Darfo and the Ideological Uses of Cultural Capital, 313

9. Ancestral Feats and Future Dreams:

Sandino and the Politics of Culture, 344

10. New Women and (Not So) New Men:

Cultural Recalcitrance and the Politics of Gender, 383

Conclusion, 434

Notes, 451

Sources Cited, 511

Index, 541