

The Economics of Conspicuous Consumption

Theory and Thought since 1700

Roger Mason

Professor of Consumer Theory, University of Salford, UK

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

Introduction	vii
1 The New Consumer Society	1
2 John Rae and ‘The Passion of Vanity’	13
3 A Confusion of Ideas	25
4 The Neoclassical View	34
5 Thorstein Veblen and the Gilded Age	46
6 The Resistance to Change	67
7 Demand Reconsidered: External Effects and the Relative Income Hypothesis	89
8 Consumer Theory and the Economics of Affluence	107
9 Status, Identity and Style: Towards a New Theory of Consumption	130
10 Perspective	152
Index	163