

The Transfer of Economic Knowledge

Edited by

Ernst Mohr

*Director, Institute for Economy and the Environment,
University of St. Gallen^Switzerland*

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of tables	viii
Notes on the contributors	• ix
Acknowledgements	xv
Introduction	xvii
Ernst Mohr

PART I THEORETICAL PERSPECTIVES AND THE TRANSFER PROCESS

1 Public choice and alternative policy perspectives	3
James M. Buchanan
2 On the political economy of economic policy advice	13
Gebhard Kirchgässner
3 The use and misuse of theory in the transfer process	32
Anne O. Krueger

PART II ASPECTS OF INSTITUTIONAL POLICY ADVICE

4 The culture of economic policy advice: an international comparison with special emphasis on Europe	47
Charles Wyplosz
5 Economic policy advice: opportunities and limitations	74
A.W. Bob Coats
6 Economic knowledge transfer by research institutes in Germany: some reflections	90
Heinz König

PART III TEACHING AND APPLICATION OF ECONOMICS

7 The making of applied economists: challenges for undergraduate curricula	103
Manfred Gartner
8 Financial innovation, the transfer of knowledge, and implications for postgraduate education	125
Heinz Zimmermann

- 9 The new media: chances and challenges for suppliers of economic education 151
Heinz Hauser and Sascha Spoun

PART IV INTERDISCIPLINARY PERSPECTIVES OF THE TRANSFER PROCESS

- 10 The relevance of psychological aspects for policy design 165
Bruno S. Frey
- 11 Interpreting institutions: the case of international public law 186
Ernst Mohr
- Index* 207