

ORGANIZING AMERICA

WEALTH, POWER, AND THE ORIGINS OF CORPORATE CAPITALISM

Charles Perrow

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY PRESS

PRINCETON AND OXFORD

CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS ix

CHAPTER 1

Introduction 1

- Some Central Concepts* 3
  - Density and concentration 3
  - Size and small-firm networks 4
  - Organizations or capitalism 6
  - Noneconomic organizations 7
  - Power 8
  - Culture and other shapers of society 9
  - Organizations as the independent variable 10
- What Do Organizations Do?* 12
- What Kind of Organizations?* 16
- Alternative Theories* 17
- Conclusion* 19

CHAPTER 2

Preparing the Ground 22

- Communities, Markets, Hierarchies, and Networks* 22
  - Community 23
  - The market direction 25
  - Toward hierarchy and networks 28
- The Legal Revolution that Launched Organizations* 31
  - Fear of corporations 33
  - What organizations need to be able to do 35
  - Making capitalism corporate 36
- Capitalism to Corporate Capitalism* 40
- Lawyers: "The Shock Troops of Capitalism"* 43

CHAPTER 3

Toward Hierarchy: The Mills of Manayunk 48

- Getting the Factory Going: The Role of Labor Control* 48
  - The first mill—a workhouse 50
  - To mechanize or not? 51
- Social Consequences* 53
- Labor Policies and Strikes* 58
- Organizations and Religion* 60
- From Working Classes to a Working Class* 61
  - The politics of class 62
- Conclusion* 63

CHAPTER 4

Toward Hierarchy and Networks	65
Lowell and the Boston Associates	65
Wage dependence and labor control	65
Lowell I: The benign phase	67
Profits and market control	69
Lowell II: The exploitive phase	70
Explaining the First Modern Business	75
Structural constraints	77
The Slater Model	79
Toward Networks with the Philadelphia Model	81
When capital counts	82
Philadelphia's large mills	84
Size and technology	86
Networks of Firms	88
Labor conflict	90
Externalities	90
The Decline of Textile Firms	92
Summary	94

CHAPTER 5

Railroads, the Second Big Business	96
Railroads in France, Britain, and the United States:
The Organizational Logic	102
France	104
Britain	108
The importance of the railroads	111
Why Were the Railroads Unregulated and Privatized?	113
The efficiency argument	115
Historical institutionalism	117
Historical institutionalism assessed	122
The neoinstitutionalist account	123
The organization interest account	127
The details	129
Self-interested opposition to the railroads	139
Corruption Observed but Not Interpreted	141
Evidence from the public record, and the outcry	144
Scholars explain corruption	151
Summary and Conclusions	157

CHAPTER 6

The Organizational Imprinting	160
Making the Railroads Work	160
Divisionalization	161

Finance takes charge	162
Inevitable, or a chance path?	165
Contracting out	166
Leadership Style and Worker Welfare	173
Work in general	175
Nationalization and Centralization: The Final Spike	179
Organizational versus political interpretations	180
Where did the money come from?	183
Regionalization versus Nationalization	186
The debate over the ethos	187
A political or an organizational interpretation of the struggle?	192
Was Regionalism Viable?	195
Concentrating Capital and Power	196
The corporate form triumphs	197
Explaining the arrival of the corporate form	201
An organizational agency account	204
Summary and Conclusions	212
CHAPTER 7
Summary and Conclusions	217
APPENDIX Alternative Theories Where Organizations Are the Dependent Variable 229
NOTES	237
BIBLIOGRAPHY	243
INDEX	251