

Karl Ludwig Brockmann • Marcus Stronzik (Eds.)

Flexible Mechanisms for an Efficient Climate Policy

Cost Saving Policies and Business Opportunities

Proceedings of an International Conference held at Stuttgart, Germany, July 27-28, 1999

With 23 Figures and 6 Tables

Physica-Verlag
&
A Springer-Verlag Company

W*TM*TM*,*

ZEW

Zentrum für Europäische
Wirtschaftliche
Forschung
Centre for European Economic Research

Contents

Introduction.....	1
by Karl Ludwig Brockmann and Marcus Stronzik
Anthropogenic Climate Change: The Risk of Unpleasant Surprises.....	7
by Stefan Rahmstorf
Possibilities and Limitations for Flexible Compliance with the Kyoto Targets.....	13
by Hans-Jürgen Ewers
Shaping Greenhouse Gas Abatement Strategies - Policy Issues and Quantitative Insights.....	19
by Christoph Bohringer
Design of the Flexibility Mechanisms: An NGO's Perspective.....	31
by Nathalie Eddy
Project-Based Instruments: Economic Consequences of the Kyoto and Buenos Aires Framework and Options for Future Development.....	39
by Axel Michaelowa
Key Developments Related to Greenhouse Gas Trading and Key Issues to Be Resolved.....	63
by Viktor Danilov-Danilian
US Experience in SO ₂ and NO _x Emissions Trading and Developments in the Greenhouse Gas Market.....	71
by Garth Edward
Political and Economic Scope for Permit Markets in Europe.....	77
by Gert Tinggaard Svendsen
Negotiated Agreements and 'Flexible Mechanisms': Building Blocks for Efficient Kyoto Implementation Strategies in the European Union?.....	87
by Peter Zapfel

Greenhouse Gas Emissions Trading in a Private Company -
BP Amoco's Flexible Mechanisms for an Efficient Climate Policy.....99
by Peter Knoedel

Meeting the Climate Challenge in the Near Term: Policy Incentives for Early Action.....111
by Annie Peterson and Joseph Goffman

A Proposal for Credible Early Action in US Climate Policy.....127
by Raymond Kopp, Richard Morgenstern, William Pizer and Michael Toman