

Reconciling Trade and the Environment

Lessons from Case Studies in Developing Countries

Veena Jha

UNCTAD, Geneva, Switzerland

Anil Markandya

University of Bath, UK

Rene Vossenaar

Chief, Trade, Environment and Development Section, UNCTAD, Geneva, Switzerland

UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE ON TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT
GENEVA, SWITZERLAND

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

List of tables and boxes	ix
List of acronyms	xiii
Foreword
Chris Speth and Rubens Ricupero	xvii
 1. Overview and lessons learnt	 1
Anil Markandya
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 Environment and trade: what are the key questions?	2
1.3 Have the changes in the trade regimes had an impact on the environment?	3
1.4 What are the trade impacts of changing environmental regulations and practices?	9
1.5 Conclusions	31
Notes	33
References	33
 2. Environmental policy, market access and competitiveness: the experience of developing countries	 36
Rene Vossenaar and Veena Jha
2.1 The issues	36
2.2 Empirical analysis	38
2.3 Policy implications	51
Notes	55
 3. Policy instruments in Multilateral Environmental Agreements: experience of developing countries	 57
3.1 The use of trade measures	58
3.2 Trade and competitiveness effects of MEAs	62
3.3 Adequacy of facilitating mechanisms in MEAs	69
3.4 Conclusions and recommendations	74
Notes	75

4. Brazil	79
4.1 Introduction	79
4.2 Relationships between trade and environment: macro issues	80
4.3 Sectoral studies	90
4.4 Effects of eco-labelling on Brazilian exports	96
4.5 Conclusions and recommendations	102
Notes	107
5. China	11 I
5.1 Introduction	111
5.2 Specific problems of China	111
5.3 Domestic environment and environmental regulations	114
5.4 Effects of environmental regulations on China's exports	115
5.5 Multilateral Environmental Agreements	121
5.6 The impact of economic reform on the environment	124
5.7 Conclusions and recommendations	127
Notes	130
6. Colombia	132
6.1 Introduction	132
6.2 Structure of international trade	133
6.3 Domestic environmental policy-making	135
6.4 Economic impact of external environmental policies, standards and regulations on Colombian exports	136
6.5 The case of small and medium-size enterprises	145
6.6 Trade and competitiveness effects of Multilateral Environmental Agreements	148
6.7 Impact of trade and trade liberalization on the Colombian environment	151
6.8 Conclusions and recommendations	156
Notes	158
7. Costa Rica	160
7.1 Introduction	160
7.2 The importance of trade in the Costa Rican economy	160
7.3 The effect of international environmental requirements on Costa Rica's exports	164
7.4 Multilateral Environmental Agreements	166
7.5 Case studies	170
7.6 Conclusions and agenda	177
Notes	181

8. India	182
8.1 Introduction	182
8.2 Specific problems of India	183
8.3 Domestic regulation	183
8.4 Effects of environmental regulations on trade	184
8.5 Multilateral Environmental Agreements	196
8.6 Effects of environmental regulations on India's exports	199
8.7 Conclusions and recommendations	200
Notes	204
9. Malaysia	206
9.1 Introduction	206
9.2 Trade, environment and development in Malaysia	206
9.3 The impact of environmental requirements on Malaysian exports	210
9.4 Multilateral Environmental Agreements	214
9.5 Environmental Management Systems: possible effects of the ISO-14001 Standard on Malaysian exports	221
9.6 Pollution control in key export sectors	223
9.7 Conclusions	226
Notes	227
10. The Philippines	231
10.1 Introduction	231
10.2 Specific problems of the Philippine economy	231
10.3 Domestic environmental problems and policy-making	234
10.4 Effects of environmental regulations on the Philippines' exports	240
10.5 Multilateral Environmental Agreements	243
10.6 Impact of economic openness on the environment	243
10.7 Conclusions and recommendations	248
Notes	251
"II. Poland	252
11.1 Introduction	252
11.2 Background to Poland's economy	252
11.3 Domestic environmental policy-making	255
11.4 Effects of external environmental requirements on trade	261
11.5 Effects of Multilateral Environmental Agreements on trade	267
11.6 Effects of trade policies on the environment	269
11.7 Conclusions and recommendations	272
Notes	273

12. Thailand	275
12.1 Introduction	275
12.2 Thailand's economy and the relevance of international trade	275
12.3 Domestic environmental regulation	277
12.4 Effects of foreign environmental requirements on Thailand's exports	278
12.5 The impact of Multilateral Environmental Agreements	283
12.6 The effects of trade policies and export expansion on the domestic environment	287
12.7 Conclusions and recommendations	292
Notes	295
13. Turkey	297
13.1 Structure of international trade	297
13.2 Effects of external environmental standards and regulations on trade	300
13.3 Effects of trade liberalization and trade expansion on the environment	308
13.4 Conclusions	312
Notes	312
14. Zimbabwe	314
14.1 Introduction	314
14.2 Background to Zimbabwe's economy	314
14.3 Domestic environmental policy-making	316
14.4 Effects of external environmental requirements on trade	317
14.5 Effects of Multilateral Environmental Agreements on trade	327
14.6 Effects of trade policies on the environment	330
14.7 Conclusions and recommendations	332
Notes	334
15. Conclusions and guidelines for further work	336
Veena Jha and Rene Vossenaar
15.1 Conclusions	336
15.2 Guidelines for future work on trade and environment: towards the development of a positive agenda	338
Index	343