

Policies, Institutions and the Dark Side of Economics

Vito Tanzi

Director, Fiscal Affairs Department, International Monetary Fund, Washington, DC, USA

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

List of figures and tables	viii
Preface	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
1 Toward a positive theory of public sector behavior: an interpretation of some Italian contributions	1
Theory of fiscal illusion	1
Primal types of states	3
Concluding remarks	6
Postscript	9
2 The changing role of the state in the economy: a historical perspective	12
Positive and normative roles of the state	12
Expansion of government role in the 20th century	16
The return to the market	20
Concluding remarks	26
3 Government role and the efficiency of policy instruments	33
Current debate on the role of government	33
The 'efficiency' of policy instruments • ¹	35
The importance of quasi-fiscal activities and regulations	37
Some quantification	40
Concluding remarks	44
4 Fundamental determinants of inequality and the role of government	49
Introduction	49
World forces, social norms and inequality	50
The traditional role of government	57
The role of government in assets and human capital distribution	61
Summary and conclusions	63
5 Modernization, ethics and public policy	68

Introduction	68
Modernization and changes in ethics	69
Ethics and public policy in a modern society	74
Concluding observations	82
6 Corruption, governmental activities and markets	88
Introduction	88
Government and markets	89
Arm's-length relationships and cultural factors	91
On corruption	93
Economic consequences of corruption	97
Policy implications	99
Concluding remarks	101
7 Corruption around the world	107
The growth of corruption	107
The definition of corruption	110
Factors that promote corruption: direct factors	112
Factors that promote corruption: indirect factors	117
Measurement of corruption	122
Corruption and growth	123
The fight against corruption and the role of the state	129
Concluding remarks	133
8 Corruption and the budget: problems and solutions	140
Instruments and effects of corruption	140
Corruption in tax and customs administration	141
Corruption in public spending	145
Steps to reduce corruption	148
Concluding remarks	152
9 Corruption, public investment and growth	154
Introduction	154
Corruption and government spending	155
Empirical analysis	159
Concluding remarks	167
10 A primer on tax evasion	171
Introduction	171
Theoretical underpinnings for causes and effects	172
Tax administration and tax evasion	176
Concluding remarks	181

11 Money laundering and the international financial system	186
Globalization and money laundering	186
Quantitative aspects of money laundering	187
The allocation of laundered money	189
Effects on economic policy	190
On policy coordination and money laundering	194
Concluding remarks	197
12 The underground economy and the unemployment rate	201
Introduction	201
Non-observed labor: some definitional and incentive issues	202
Some statistical information	208
Concluding remarks	212
13 International dimensions of national tax policy	215
Introduction	215
The past	216
The present	218
Possible solutions	223
The financing of international public goods	227
Concluding remarks	229
14 Fiscal federalism and decentralization: a review of some efficiency and macroeconomic aspects	231
Factors behind the recent trend toward decentralization	231
Decentralization and economic efficiency	234
Decentralization and stabilization	244
Financing the activities of local governments	251
Concluding remarks ; [!]	257
15 The budget deficit in transition: a cautionary note	264
Budget deficit limits and perverse incentives	265
The need to separate fiscal policy from monetary policy	269
Concluding remarks	270
Index	275