

The Record of Global Economic Development

Eric Jones

Melbourne Business School, Australia and University of Reading, UK

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

r.

Contents

List of tables	vi
Preface and acknowledgements	vii
PART I: LONG-TERM ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT
1 Very long-term economic growth and its implications	3
2 Environment, state and economic development in the history of Europe and Asia	19
3 The European Miracle and its relevance	34
4 World agriculture in the very long term	48
PART II: PROTECTIONISM
5 Multifunctionality: the experience of English farming	67
6 The costs of language diversity	82
PART III: EAST ASIAN DEVELOPMENT
7 The ultimate significance of East Asian development	99
8 The East Asian crisis in context	115
9 'Asian Values' and cultural explanations of economic change	132
PART IV: ADJUSTING TO GLOBAL CHANGE
10 Making business competitive: the Australian experience	147
11 The case for supermarkets: the Australian experience	175
12 Global integration and global prospects	198
Bibliography	215
Index	223