

Fairness in the World Economy

US Perspectives on International Trade
Relations

AMERICO BEVIGLIA ZAMPETTI

United Nations, Geneva

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	1
1 Analytical framework	9
1.1 Theoretical perspectives on international trade policy-making: a brief reminder	9
1.2 The role of ideas in international relations: a theoretical revival	12
1.3 The approach of this study	18
2 Fairness: in search of a meaning	26
2.1 Defining the notion of fairness: insights from political philosophy	26
2.2 The social psychology dimension of fairness	36
2.3 Fairness concerns in economic theory	38
2.4 Summary	40
3 Fairness in the US commercial policy discourse before the advent of the multilateral trade system	46
3.1 Fairness in the US socio-economic ethos	46
3.2 Fairness in the development of US international trade policy from its origin to the beginning of the 1930s	50
3.2.1 The protective tariff	51
3.2.2 Unfair trade legislation	66
3.2.3 Reciprocity and equality of treatment through commercial treaties	73
3.3 Summary	85
4 The fairness idea in the development of the multilateral trade regime	98
4.1 The Reciprocal Trade Agreements Programme	98
4.2 Fairness concerns in the development of the GATT system	111
4.3 The results of the negotiations: the GATT and the Havana Charter	124
4.4 A selective look at the evolution of the GATT system	132
4.4.1 The case of subsidy rules	134
4.4.2 The case of safeguard rules	142
4.5 Summary	147

5	Rethinking fairness in the evolution of the international trade policy and rule-making discourse	162
5.1	The GATT and developing countries	163
5.2	The concept of special and differential treatment	168
5.3	Bottom-up fairness: the fair trade movement	172
6	Conclusion	181
6.1	Fairness or equity?	183
	Bibliography	191
	Index	211