

Comparative Government

AN INTRODUCTION

J. BLONDEL

European University Institute
Florence

SECOND EDITION

---

PRENTICE HALL

LONDON NEW YORK TORONTO SYDNEY TOKYO SINGAPORE
MADRID MEXICO CITY MUNICH

Contents

Preface to the first edition	xi
Preface to the second edition	xiii
List of tables and figures	xiv
PART I General framework and concepts	1
1 The importance and scope of comparative government	3
Introduction	3
Benefits of comparative study	4
The scope of the study of comparative government	8
Overview	12
Further reading	12
2 Political systems and the role of institutions	14
Introduction	14
The political system	15
Structures, institutions and groups	19
Links among the structures in the political system	22
Overview	25
Further reading	26
3 Types of political system	27
Introduction	27
A framework of norms for distinguishing political systems	28
The five main types of political system in the world today	34
Institutions and groups in political systems	40
Overview	46
Further reading	46

4 Political development	48
Introduction	48
The concept of political development	49
Political development and the role of structures	53
Political development and the role of norms	56
Overview	60
Further reading	61
5 Legitimacy, integration and coercion	62
Introduction	62
Legitimacy and individual support	63
Political integration	67
Coercive political systems and dictatorships	71
Overview	74
Further reading	75
PART II Society and government	77
6 The social bases of political systems	79
Introduction	79
Political systems and socioeconomic structure	80
Plural societies	85
Cultural characteristics	89
Overview	93
Further reading	94
7 Groups and political systems	95
Introduction	95
Controversies about groups in political life	96
The classification of groups and political systems	99
Communal and associational groups	105
Overview	110
Further reading	111
8 Political communication and the media	113
Introduction	113
Towards a general theory of communication	114
Communication processes and the communication media	116
The effect of public communication	122
Overview	125
Further reading	126

PART III Political parties and elections	127
9 Political parties: origins, nature and structure	129
Introduction	129
Political parties in the world today	129
Social bases and goals of parties	133
The structure of political parties	139
Overview	150
Further reading	151
10 Party systems	153
Introduction	153
Systems without parties	154
Single-party systems	156
Systems of more than one party	164
Atlantic party systems	167
Other systems of more than one party	172
Overview	177
Further reading	178
11 Parties, elections and direct democracy	180
Introduction	180
Arrangements to ensure fair electoral practices	181
Electoral systems and seat allocation	184
Electoral systems and party systems	188
Referendums and direct democracy	194
Overview	196
Further reading	197
12 Parties in the world today	199
Introduction	199
Party stability	200
Recruitment of national decision-makers	204
National decision making	205
The link between rulers and the population	206
Overview	211
Further reading	211
PART IV Governmental structures	213
13 Constitutions	215
Introduction	215
Constitutional rules	216
Constitutional supremacy	218
The content of constitutions	222
Overview	227
Further reading	228

14	Centralization and decentralization	229
	Introduction	229
	Centralization and decentralization	230
	The federal model	234
	Comparison of federal and unitary states	238
	Unions of states	242
	Overview	245
	Further reading	246
15	Representation: legislatures and parliaments	248
	Introduction	248
	Formal powers and the effective role of legislatures	249
	Characteristics of contemporary legislatures	253
	The activities of legislators	259
	The influence of legislatures	261
	Overview	265
	Further reading	265
16	National executives	267
	Introduction	267
	The functions of national executives	268
	Forms of governmental organization	270
	Members of governments	280
	The impact of governments	284
	Overview	286
	Further reading	287
17	Political leadership	288
	Introduction	288
	What is political leadership?	289
	The institutional bases of leadership	292
	The personal qualities of leaders	297
	How much does leadership matter?	300
	Overview	302
	Further reading	303
	PART V Implementation and control	305
18	Bureaucracies	307
	Introduction	307
	Governments and administrative 'obedience'	310
	Special responsibilities and independence of administrators	315
	The administrative or technocratic state: myth or reality?	318

Overview	321
Further reading	321
19 The role of the military in the political process	323
Introduction	323
The propensity of military intervention	324
Levels of military intervention	328
Military regimes and their fate	331
Overview	337
Further reading	338
20 Rule adjudication and judges	339
Introduction	339
Rule adjudication and the independence of courts	342
The depth of rule adjudication	347
The scope of rule adjudication	352
Overview	356
Further reading	356
21 The policy process	358
Introduction	358
What is the policy process?	359
Individuals and socioeconomic forces	362
How far is the policy process rational?	363
Policy styles and the policy process	366
Overview	369
Further reading	370
22 Government and people in contemporary politics	371
Introduction	371
Indirect relations between people and government	373
Direct links between people and government	377
Overview	382
Further reading	383
23 The future of the study of comparative government	384
Introduction	384
General theory: norms, structures and behaviour	385
Middle-range theory: the dynamics of structures	387
Overview	391
Further reading	392
Bibliography	393
Index	408