

The Paradox of China's Post-Mao Reforms

Edited by

Merle Goldman

Roderick MacFarquhar

Harvard University Press
Cambridge, Massachusetts
London, England 1999

Contents

Preface	vii
I Introduction
1. Dynamic Economy, Declining Party-State Merle Goldman & Roderick MacFarquhar	3
2. China's Transition in Economic Perspective Barry Naughton	30
II Limited Political Reforms
3. Elite Politics Joseph Fewsmith	47
4. Party-Military Relations Paul H. B. Godwin	76
5. The National People's Congress Murray Scot Tanner	100
6. The Struggle over Village Elections Lianjiang Li & Kevin J. O'Brien	129
7. Mass Political Behavior in Beijing Tianjian Shi	145

Contents

III Fragmenting Society

- | | |
|---|-----|
| 8. The Changing Role of Workers | 173 |
| Martin King Whyte | |
| 9. Farmer Discontent and Regime Responses | 197 |
| Thomas P. Bernstein | |
| 10. China's Floating Population | 220 |
| Dorothy J. Solinger | |
| 11. The New Middle Class | 241 |
| David S. G. Goodman | |
| 12. The Rise of Private Business Interests | 262 |
| Kristen Parris | |
| 13. The Emergence of Politically Independent
Intellectuals | 283 |
| Merle Goldman | |
| 14. Crime, Corruption, and Contention | 308 |
| Elizabeth J. Perry | |

Conclusion

- | | |
|---|-----|
| 15. The "State of the State" | 333 |
| Richard Baum & Alexei Sheuchenko | |
| Notes | 363 |
| Contributors | 449 |