

Oman Beyond the Oil Horizon Policies Toward Sustainable Growth

Edited by Ahsan Mansur and Volker Treichel

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND

Washington DC

1999

Contents

	Page
Preface	vii
I Overview Ahsan Mansur	I
II Growth and the Saving-Investment Balance: Past Performance and Future Challenges Emmanuel K. Martey	4
Growth Performance and Sectoral Transformation	4
Aggregate Supply	4
Use of Resources	6
Sectoral Transformation	7
Investment and Domestic and National Saving	8
Saving and Investment	8
Resource Balance	9
Five-Year Plan Targets	10
Total Factor Productivity and the Policy Environment	11
Total Factor Productivity	11
Policy Environment	11
Prospective Challenges	12
Saving-Investment Balance	12
Factor Productivity	13
Diversification	13
References	13
III Oman in Regional Perspective Emmanuel K. Martey	14
Macroeconomic Developments and Shared Issues	14
Regional Cooperation	16
Prospective Challenges	17
References	18
IV Stance of Fiscal Policy and Non-Oil Economic Growth Volker Treichel	19
Fiscal Policy and Growth: An Overview of the Literature	20
Tax Policy	20
Expenditure Policy	20
Budgetary Balance	20
Fiscal Policy in Oman, 1981–97	21
Developments in the Fiscal Sector and the Stance of Fiscal Policy	21
Role of Oil Revenues in Determining Expenditure Policy	24
Impact of Fiscal Policy on Non-Oil GDP Growth	26
Sustainability of Fiscal Policy in Oman	26
The Government's Fiscal Consolidation Plan	28
Conclusions	30
References	30

V	Financial Intermediation and the Evolving Role of the Central Bank	31
	Emmanuel K. Martey
	Institutional Framework	31
	Commercial Banks	31
	Nonbank Financial Intermediaries	32
	Financial Instruments	32
	Monetary Developments and Features of Financial Intermediation	33
	Financial Deepening	33
	Interest Rate Spreads	35
	Central Bank's Role in Financial Sector Development and Intermediation	36
	Institutional Framework	36
	Prudential Regulation and Supervision	36
	Framework of Monetary Policy	38
	Prospects for Transition to Indirect Instruments	38
	Challenges for the Medium Term	38
	References	39
VI	Scope for Monetary Policy Independence in Oman	40
	Khaled Sakr
	Conceptual Background and Methodology	40
	An Empirical Investigation	41
	Developments from Late 1989 to Early 1991	42
	Developments from Early 1991 to October 1993	42
	Developments Since October 1993	42
	Econometric Testing	43
	Conclusions	45
	References	45
VII	External Shocks, Policy Responses, and Domestic Adjustment	46
	Saade Chami
	External Shocks and Adjustment	46
	Role of Macroeconomic Policies	47
	Structural Reforms	47
	Labor Market and Wage Policy	47
	Adjustment to Terms-of-Trade Shocks in Oman	48
	Policy Setting and Constraints	48
	Terms-of-Trade Shocks and Policy Responses	48
	A Methodology for Evaluating Policy Responses	49
	Quantitative Evaluation of Responses to Shocks	51
	Policy Instruments and Economic Responses	53
	Fiscal Policy	53
	Monetary and Exchange Rate Policy	53
	Wage Policy	54
	Other Structural Reforms	55
	Concluding Observations	55
	References	55
	Appendix I Fiscal Impulse Analysis	57
	Boxes
	4.1. Selected Fiscal Indicators in Regional Perspective	25
	7.1. The Indonesian Experience with External Shocks	49
	Tables
	2.1. Growth of GDP, the Oil and Non-Oil Sectors, and Real GDP Per Capita	5
	2.2. Determinants of Growth, Investment, and Saving, 1982–97	6