

DELIVERING ON DEBT RELIEF

From IMF Gold to a
New Aid Architecture

Nancy Birdsall
John Williamson
with Brian Deese

Center for Global Development
Institute for International Economics
Washington, DC
April 2002

Contents

Foreword	ix
Preface	xi
1 Introduction	1
Group A versus Group B	1
Expanding Debt Relief	4
Reinventing the Aid Architecture	6
Appendix 1.1: Ten Questions about Debt and Debt Relief	8
2 The HIPC Initiative: Background and Critiques	13
The Heavily Indebted Poor Countries	19
Recent Debt Relief Initiatives	21
The Enhanced HIPC Framework	26
Critiques of the Enhanced HIPC Initiative	33
3 The Case for More	41
Debt Sustainability	41
The Millennium Development Goals	44
4 What Form of More?	49
Political Resonance	50
Additionality	55

Redistribution	61
Efficiency	66
Country Selectivity	75
Summary	78
5 Deepening and Extending Debt Reduction	79
Deeper Relief	80
Making More Countries Eligible	86
A Contingency Facility	91
Financing More Debt Relief	93
6 A New Aid Architecture	101
The HIPC Procedure	102
Grants, Not Just Loans	106
Incremental Proposals to Increase Donor Accountability	108
Donor Incentives for Selectivity	110
Exploiting Multilateralism: The Common Pool	113
Sovereign Debt: Building on the HIPC Initiative	114
7 Conclusions	115
Whether to Extend More Debt Relief	116
How to Extend the HIPC Initiative	117
Cost of the Extensions	117
Toward a New Aid Architecture	118
Appendix A: Multilateral Institutions Participating in the HIPC Initiative	119
Appendix B: Countries Classified by Income	121
Appendix C: Odious Debt	123
References	147
Glossary	151
Index	153