

Development of Economic Analysis

Sixth Edition

Ingrid Hahne Rima

London and New York

Contents

Preface to the sixth edition	ix
Part I
Preclassical Economics	2
1 Early masterworks as sources of economic thought	8
2 The origins of analytical economics	23
3 The transition to classical economics	44
Part II
Classical Economics	64
4 Physiocracy: the beginning of analytical economics	68
5 Adam Smith: from moral philosophy to political economy	87
6 Thomas Malthus and J. B. Say: the political economy of population behavior and aggregate demand	116
7 David Ricardo and William Nassau Senior: income shares and their long-term tendencies	138
8 Ricardo, Senior and John Stuart Mill: international trade, monetary theory and method in economic science	160
9 Classical theory in review: from Quesnay to McCulloch	181
		Part III
		The Critics of Classicism	194
		10 Socialism, induction, and the forerunners of marginalism	199
		11 Karl Marx: an inquiry into the 'Law of Motion' of the capitalist system	220
		12 'First-generation' marginalists: Jevons, Walras, and Menger	244
		13 'Second-generation' marginalists and the Austrian School	273
		Part IV
		The Neoclassical Tradition, 1890-1945	300
		14 Alfred Marshall and the neoclassical tradition	306
		15 Chamberlin, Robinson, and other price theorists	337
		16 The 'new' theory of welfare and consumer behavior	360
		17 Neoclassical monetary and business-cycle theorists	383
		Part V
		The Dissent from Neoclassicism, 1890-1945	404
		18 The dissent of American institutionalists	409
		19 The economics of planning; socialism without Marxism	427

Contents

20	J. M. Keynes's critique of the mainstream tradition	441	23	Keynesians, neo-Walrasians, and monetarists	503
21	Keynes's theory of employment, output, and income; Harrod's dynamic interpretation	458	24	The analytics of economic liberalism: the Chicago tradition	526
Part VI			25	Competing paradigms in contemporary economics	545
Beyond High Theory			482	Index of names	571
22	The emergence of econometrics as the sister discipline of economics	490	Index of subjects	575	