

Creating Capitalism

Transitions and Growth in Post-Soviet Europe

Patricia Dillon

Scripps College, Claremont, California, USA

Frank C. Wykoff

Pomona College, Claremont, California, USA

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

List of figures	x
List of tables	xi
Preface	xiii

PART I THEORETICAL FOUNDATIONS

1	The withering away of communism	5
	The end of an idea	5
	Economic analysis of institutional change	6
	The book's objectives: from models to reality	12
	Two historic views of the industrial revolution	13
	Lessons from the collapse of the Soviet Union	19
	The new world order	21
2	The political economy of reform	24
	New political and economic challenges	24
	Political impediments to economic reform	27
	Transition to what?	31
	Problems in political economy	34
3	Why private markets work	37
	Why these reforms?	37
	Price liberalization	38
	Property privatization	41
	Macroeconomic stabilization	44
	Industry restructuring and deregulation	47
	Trade liberalization	49
	An active role for government	49
	Failure: markets versus plans	52
4	Growth models for assessing reforms	57
	Reforms lead to growth	57
	Growth modelling: description, purposes and limitations	59
	The structure of growth models	66
	The workings and outcomes of growth models	69
	Saving: the essential ingredient	72

5	How each reform promotes growth	76
	The economic channels of reform	76
	Price liberalization	78
	Property privatization	79
	Macroeconomic stabilization	81
	Industry restructuring and deregulation	82
	Trade liberalization	85
	Summary: reforms and growth	86
6	Challenges facing reformers	91
	Why a political model is important	91
	Interaction of political and economic systems	93
	A model of elections and politics	95
	Common problems facing reformers	102
	Unique local conditions	106
PART II COUNTRY CHAPTERS
7	Bulgaria: impatient but indecisive	115
	History before communism	116
	History under communism	117
	Political transition, economic changes	120
	Economic reforms: three steps forward and two back	123
	Conclusions and recommendations	130
8	Are the Czechs capitalist superstars?	133
	History before communism	135
	History under Soviet rule	137
	The Velvet Revolution	139
	Economic reforms	144
	Economic performance and the future	151
9	Estonia is headed West	155
	Estonia before the Soviets	157
	History under Soviet rule	159
	Political transition and the birth of Estonian reforms	162
	Attitudes to reforms since independence	164
	Economic reforms: how complete, how successful?	165
	Sustainability of reforms and the future	173
10	A taste of Hungarian goulash	177
	History before communism	178
	History under communism	181
	The political transition	186
	A question of political will	189

Conclusions and outlook	194
11 Can Russia make it?	196
History before communism	197
History under communism	199
The political transition	200
Economic reforms	201
Economic performance	213
Conclusions and recommendations	214
12 Will the Slovaks stay the course?	220
Slovakia before the Soviets: years of foreign domination	222
The Soviet years	224
The Velvet Revolution and Divorce, 1988-1993	226
Economic reforms	227
, The future looks better than the past	234
Conclusions and questions	236
13 The long and winding road	238
PART III APPENDICES
Appendix A. Reforms in growth models	251
1. The corn economy	252
2. The public fisc and private budgets	262
3. Endogenous technological change and technology transfer	266
4. Technology transfer	269
Appendix B. Political influence, economic performance and reform efforts: an econometric analysis of six newly independent countries, 1989-1999	273
1. Reforms and the growth model	273
2. Voting behavior and the growth model	276
3. Simultaneous equation system	277
4. Allowing for not voting pocketbook issues	279
5. Econometric results and the data	282
6. Votes, reforms and performance: dummy variable models	287
7. Votes, reforms and performance: percentage of votes and reform indexes	292
8. Conclusions and recommendations	303
Bibliography	305
Index	323