

Updating to Remain the Same

Habitual New Media

Wendy Hui Kyong Chun

The MIT Press
Cambridge, Massachusetts
London, England

Contents

Preface: The Wonderful Creepiness of New Media ix

Acknowledgments xiii

Introduction: Habitual New Media, or Updating to Remain (Close to) the Same 1

Interlude: THEY→YOU 21

Part I: Imagined Networks, Glocal Connections 25

Always Searching, Never Finding 29

1 Habitual Connections, or Network Maps: Belatedly Too Early 39

Habit + Crisis = Update 63

2 Crisis, Crisis, Crisis, or The Temporality of Networks 69

Part II: Privately Public: The Internet's Perverse Subjects 93

The Friend of My Friend Is My Enemy (and Thus My Friend) 97

3 The Leakiness of Friends, or Think Different Like Me 103

I Never Remember; YOUs Never Forget 129

4 Inhabiting Writing: Against the Epistemology of Outing 135

Reality ≠ Truth 167

Conclusion: Found Habituation 171

Appendix: Selection of Comments Posted to Amanda Todd's Video
(September 12, 2013) 175

Notes 181

Bibliography 219

Index 237