

DRU C. GLADNEY

dislocating China

Reflections on Muslims, Minorities, and Other Subaltern Subjects

HURST & COMPANY, LONDON

CONTENTS

Preface and Acknowledgments	page xi
1. Introduction: Locating and Dislocating Culture in Contemporary China	1
Part I. RECOGNITIONS
2. Cultural Nationalisms in Contemporary China	6
Ethnic identity in China	6'
The politics of ethnic identification	9
The politics of Han nationalism	13
The politics of ethnic separatism	17
Population politics: 'coming out' in the 1990s	20
The politics of 'unofficial' ethnicity	23
The disuniting of China?	26
3. Mapping the Chinese Nation	28
Mapping nations, mapping peoples	28
Path dependence: derivative discourses of nationalism	29
The Polynesian Cultural Center: a proto-path?	'31
Mixed media, blurred genres, and derivative discourses	34
Mapping the Chinese Ethnic Culture Park	39
Path dependence and the seductiveness of theme parks	46
Scrambling and unscrambling paths	47
Breaking path dependence	49

Part II. REPRESENTATIONS

4. Making, Marking, and Marketing Identity	51
Representing identity	51
The display and commodification of the minority other in China	54
Essentializing the Han	59
Han modernity and the construction of primitivity	60
Exotitizing and eroticizing minorities in China	64
Painting minorities: the invention of the Yunnan School	69
Marginalizing the center of Chinese film	74
Contesting and coopting otherness: eroticizing (even) the Muslims	78
Women as minority and other in China	81
5. Film and Forecasting the Nation	85
The Fifth Generation	85
• Horse Thief and its critics	88
Minority representation in China	89
The background to minorities film	92
Borderless crossing: exoticization in Chinese film	92
Representing Horse Thief's minorities	95
Majority agendas, minority subjects	96

Part III. FOLKLORIZATIONS

6. Enmeshed Civilizations	99
Huntington's 'clash of civilizations' in China	99
Creating hybridity: human and Hui origins	103
Legitimizing hybridity: imperial imprimatur	107
Maintaining hybridity: marriage and miscegenation	111
Between and between	116
7. Localization and Transnational Pilgrimages	120
Defining the Hui	120
Historic tombs and international prominence	121
Sufi tombs and transnational networks	125
Local tombs and communal interests	139

Local gongbei and ethnic folklore	143
Tombs and Hui ancestral tradition	147

Part IV. ETHNICIZATIONS

Dialogic Identities'	150
Ethnic dialogues	150
The enigmatic Hui: in search of an ethnic group	152
A northwestern Sufi community	153
A Hui community' in Oxen Street, Beijing	154
A Hui community on the southeast coast	155
Hui communities in China's minority areas	156
Hui identity and state recognition	156
Ethnicity and the nation-state i ' —	158
The dialogical nature of ethnic identity	159
Ethnogenesis of a Muslim minority: from Huijiao to Huimin	160
The social life of labels	165
The local expression of Hui identity	167
The rise of pan-Hui ethnic identity	169
State definition, minority identity, and Han nationalism	170
The dialogue and contestation of ethnicity in China	173
9. Relational Alterities	176
The re-emergence of the 'tribe'	176
Three families, three 'nations'	181
The Muslim Chinese: making hybridity	187
Relational alterity and oppositional identities	189
The Uyghur: indigenities of place, space, and state recognition	193
The Kazakh: nomadic nostalgia and the power of genealogy	195
Unscrambling overstructured identities	200
Relational alterities	202

Part V. INDIGENIZATIONS

10. Ethnogenesis or Ethnogenocide?	205
The Uyghur: old and new	205

Ethnogenesis and the nation-state	208
The ethnogenesis of the Uyghur	210
Twentieth-century Chinese expansion and Uyghur identity	216
The incorporation of Xinjiang and modern Uyghur identity	219
Uyghur identity and the Chinese nation-state	225 1
11. Cyber-Separatism	229
• Reconstructing Uyghur identity	229
The transnationalization of the Uyghur: Salman Rushdie and trans-Eurasian railways	231
Islamization and Chinese geopolitics	235
Cyber-separatism: virtual voices in the Uyghur opposition	238
Contesting otherness	257
Part VI. SOCIALIZATIONS .
12. Educating China's Others	260
Making Muslims •	260
Education and China's civilizing mission	261
Representation of Muslims as minority nationalities	264
Muslim self-representation	265
Chinese education of Muslims	266
Post-1949 Chinese education of Muslims	269
The gender gap: male/female education discrepancies among Muslim nationalities	275
The rise of Islamic education and its influence on Chinese education	277
Public and private discourse on Islamic knowledge in China	280
13. Subaltern Perspectives on Prosperity	282
Cell phones and beepers: capitalism comes to the Hui	282
Muslim nationality, Chinese state - •	285
Ethnoreligioiis revitalization in a northwestern Sufi community	288
• Hui economic prosperity and ethnic reinvention in Fujian	294
Reflections on Hui prosperity, north and south ,	298
Han capitalism in socialist China	299
Han and Hui market perspectives: contrasting moralities	309

PartVII. POLITICIZATIONS

14. Gulf Wars and Displaced Persons	.	312
China and the Middle East	• ' "	312
Transnational Islam and Muslim national identity in China		315
Islamic* movements and revivalism in China	>•	319
The first Gulf War and China's Muslims: dividing lines		322
Mutual withdrawal and a 'peaceful resolution'		324
Colonialism under different masters	•	328
But what about the cost of lamb?		329
The war on Iraq: a war on Islam?		331
Open doors, guarded expressions		334
15. Bodily Positions, Social Dispositions	• ' "	336
Images of Tiananmen	\ ' "	336
Tiananmen requiem	-	339
Bodily efficacy and River Elegy		344
Bodily dispositions and Tiananmen		348
Bodily occupation of the public sphere		357
16. Conclusions	-	360
China after 91'11	>	360
Subaltern perspectives on the Chinese geo-body ,		362
Chinese nationalism and its subaltern implications		363
Subaltern separatism and Chinese response		364
China's expanding internal colonialism		366
Bibliography	,	368
Index		402