

Environmental Regimes in Asian Subregions

China and the Third Pole

Simon Marsden

Professor and Chair in Energy Law, School of Law, Faculty of Arts and Humanities, University of Stirling, UK

 Edward Elgar
PUBLISHING

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

Preface and acknowledgements	vi
List of abbreviations	viii
Foreword	xii
Table of international cases, treaties and other international instruments	xiv
1 Introduction: Asian subregions, environmental regimes and regime effectiveness	1
2 Southwest Asia: the Arabian Gulf/Gulf of Oman and the Red Sea/Gulf of Aden regimes	26
3 Connecting central Asia with southwest, north and Eurasia: the Caspian Sea, Aral Sea and sustainable development regimes	73
4 Southeast Asia: the Mekong, conservation and haze pollution regimes	124
5 Linking south and east Asia: the Tumen regime, China and the Third Pole	177
Bibliography	240
Index	277