

THE RULE OF THE MANY

Fundamental Issues in Democratic Theory

Thomas Christiano
UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments IX

Introduction 1

The Justification and Elaboration of the Democratic Ideals, I
Democratic Ideals and the Modern State, 5
The Plan of the Book, 8
Notes, 11

PART ONE
FOUNDATIONS OF DEMOCRACY

1 Self-Government 15

Self-Government and Democracy, 17
Participation and Self-Government, 19
A Nondemocratic Method of Ensuring Self-
Government, 22
The Direct View of Democratic Participation and Self-Government, 24
The Epistemic View of Democratic Participation and Self-Government, 29
Difficulties with the Epistemic View, 32
The Constructive View of Democratic Participation and Self-Government, 35
Objections to the Constructive View, 37
Conclusion, 43
Notes, 43

2 Equality 47

Democratic Equality as a Fair Compromise, 48
Problems with Democracy as a Compromise, 51

Equal Consideration of Interests, 53
Taking Stock, 56
An Egalitarian Defense of Democracy, 59
Interests, judgments, and Conflicting Conceptions of Justice, 71
Democratic Equality and the Problem of Regress, 75
Democracy and Civil and Economic Justice, 78
Equality and Democratic Deliberation, 83
The Nature of Democratic Equality: From Procedural Equality to Equality in the Process, 87
A. Note on Social Choice Theory and Democracy, 93
Conclusion, 97
Notes, 98

PART TWO
 DEMOCRACY AND THE PROBLEM OF THE MODERN STATE

3	The Challenge of the Modern State to the Democratic Ideals	105
	The Problem of Participation, 106
	The Challenge of the Modern State to Political Equality, 110
	The Challenge of the Modern State to Rational Democratic Deliberation, 116
	What Is Rational Social Deliberation? 116
	The Reason-Guidedness Condition on Rational Social Deliberation, 118
	Rational Social Deliberation and the Political Division of Labor: Two Problems, 123
	The Citizen and Rational Deliberation with Experts, 125
	The Need for a Theory of Democratic Citizenship, 127
	Notes, 128
4	The Economic Conception of Citizenship	131
	The Elements of a Theory of Democratic Citizenship, 131
	The Economic Models of Citizenship, 133

Participating on the Grounds of Self-interest, 147
The Assessment of the Self-Interest View of Voting and Participation, 148
Methodological Arguments for the Self-interest Axiom, 152
The Expressivist View of Voting, 157
Conclusion, 159
Notes, 159
5 A Normative Conception of Citizenship	165
The Role of Citizenship, 166
Activities of Citizenship, 178
The Standards of Citizenship, 180
The Implications of the Role of Citizenship for the Ideals of Democracy, 190
The Agency Problem, 195
The Problem of the Complexity of Aims, 197
A Division of Labor in the Choice of Aims, 199
The Need for a Theory of Democratic Institutions, 200
Notes, 201
PART THREE PRINCIPLES AND PROBLEMS OF DEMOCRATIC INSTITUTIONS
6 Equnlity and Legislative Representation	207
Political Responsibility, 208
Formal Accounts of Political Responsibility, 209
Substantive Accounts of Political Responsibility, 2 11
Trustee and Delegate, 213
An Approach to Political Responsibility, 215
The Principle of Voluntary Proportionality, 219
Proportional Representation, 224 "
Proportional Representation, Equality, Vagueness, and Stability, 232

	The Limits of the Contribution of Proportional Representation, 238
7	Interest Groups and Political Parties as Institutions of Deliberation	243
	The Deliberative Function of Interest Groups and Political Parties, 244
	Political Parties and Interest Groups, 245
	Other Functions of Secondary Associations, 248
	The Primacy of the Deliberative Function of Secondary Associations, 250
	Legislative Autonomy, 257
	The Contribution of Proportional Representation to Political Deliberation, 258
	Notes, 262	;
8	Equality in the Process of Social Deliberation	265
	Equality Within Interest Groups and Political Parties, 266
	Equality in the System of Associations: The Deliberative Agenda, 271
	Dimensions of Complexity of the Deliberative Agenda, 272
	The Deliberative Agenda Problem, 277
	Institutional Arrangements: The Marketplace of Ideas, 279
	Public Support for Political Parties and Secondary Institutions, 287
	An Egalitarian Marketplace of Ideas? 288
	A Democratic Solution, 290
	The Problem of Circularity, 291
	Notes, 295
	Selected Bibliography	299
	About the Book and Author	305
	Index	307