

Inklings of Democracy in China

Suzanne Ogden

Published by Harvard University Asia Center and distributed by Harvard University Press
Cambridge (Massachusetts) and London 2002

Contents

Introduction

How Do We Know What Democracy Is?

Who defines democracy? 9/ Democracy as a social construct 12/ Dominance of the Western liberal democratic concept 14/ Ethnocentricity of the Western definition of democracy 16/ Cultural relativism 24/ The balance between equality and freedom 31

China's Traditional Political Culture

Late Imperial China and the Republican Period

The form and values of democracy 63/ The means to achieve democracy 68/ A new meaning of democracy 69/ The adoption of an alternative ideal 72

The Relevance of Political Culture to Establishing a Democratic Political System

Why choose democracy? 81/ From where do ideas for democratization come? 83/ Development, democracy, and culture 91/ Development, democracy, and decentralization 93/ The historical sequencing of democratization: the problem of latecomers 95/ Conclusion 113

Individual Rights, Democracy, and a Cohesive Community

Individual freedom 125/ How should we think about rights and freedom? 126/ Do the Chinese feel freer than they did before 1949? 133/ Do the Chinese feel freer than they did in 1979? 142/ Conclusions: China's gradual expansion of rights and democracy 177

6	The Institutionalization of Procedural Democracy	182
	Village elections and self-governance 183/ Urban elections: neighborhood residents' and property-owners' committees 220/ The selection of leaders 228/ Greater legal protections and rights for individuals 230/ The growing rights and powers of the legislative branch 251/ Conclusions 255
7	China's Developing Civil Society: Associations and Interest Groups	258
	A multiparty system 260/ The relative importance of parties versus associations or interest groups 263/ The relevance of political parties to democracy 275/ Corporatism 280/ Democracy and a multiplicity of associations 303/ Conclusions: associational or interest pluralism in China 311
8	The Clientelist Relationship of Intellectuals with the Party-State and the Capitalist Class	318
	The diversity of perspectives among intellectuals 331/ Cultural intellectuals and state patronage 338/ The contribution of intellectuals to civil society 348
9	Fair and Consistent Standards for Evaluating Freedom and Democracy in China	353

Appendix

	Surveys Conducted in China	383
--	-----------------------------------	-----

Reference Matter

	Bibliography	395
	Glossary of Terms	419
	Index	4-21