

BARBARISM AND RELIGION

Volume Three

The First Decline and Fall

J. G. A. POCOCK

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Acknowledgements	page ix
Note on usages	xi
List of abbreviations	xii
Introduction	1
PROLOGUE
1 Gibbon's first volume: the problem of the Antonine moment	7
PART I THE FIRST DECLINE AND FALL: ANCIENT PERCEPTIONS
2 Alibi quam Romae : the Tacitean narrative	17
3 The Gracchan explanation: Appian of Alexandria and the unknown historian	32
4 The construction of Christian empire	61
PART II THE AMBIVALENCE AND SURVIVAL OF CHRISTIAN EMPIRE
5 Orosius and Augustine: the formation of a Christian anti-history	77
6 Otto of Freising and the two cities	98
7 The historiography of the translatio imperii	127

PART III THE HUMANIST CONSTRUCTION OF DECLINE
AND FALL

- 8 Leonardo Bruni: from translatio to declinatio 153
 9 Flavio Biondo and the decades of decline 179
 10 Niccolò Machiavelli and the imperial republic 203

PART IV EXTENSIVE MONARCHY AND ROMAN HISTORY

- 11 Pedro Mexía: empire and monarchy 239
 12 History in the western monarchies: barbarism, law and republican survivals 258
 13 Lipsius and Harrington: the problem of arms in ancient and modern monarchy 276

PART V REPUBLIC AND EMPIRE: THE ENLIGHTENED NARRATIVE

- 14 European Enlightenment and the Machiavellian moment 307
 15 The French narrative:
 I Bossuet and Tillemont 325
 II Montesquieu and Beaufort 338
 16 The Scottish narrative:
 I David Hume and Adam Smith 372
 II Adam Ferguson's history of the republic 399

PART VI GIBBON AND THE STRUCTURE OF DECLINE

- 17 The Antonine moment 419
 18 The Severi and the disintegration of the principate 448
 19 The Illyrian recovery and the new monarchy 464

EPILOGUE

- 20 The Constantinean moment 489

- Bibliography of works cited* 501
Index 516