

The Evolution of Markets for Water

Theory and Practice in Australia

Edited by

Jeff Bennett

*Professor of Environmental Management,
Asia Pacific School of Economics and Government,
The Australian National University, Canberra, Australia*

NEW HORIZONS IN ENVIRONMENTAL ECONOMICS

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Contents

Figures	vi
Tables	vii
About the Authors	viii
Acknowledgements	xi
Preface by Alan Moran	xii
1. Markets and Government - An Evolving Balance Jeff Bennett	1
2. Principles and Issues for Effective Australian Water Markets John Freebairn	8
3. The Historical Variation in Water Rights Richard A. Epstein	24
4. State Administration versus Private Innovation: The Evolution of Property Rights to Water in Victoria, Australia Edwynna Harris	38
5. A Property Framework for Water Markets: The Role of Law Poh-Ling Tan	56
6. Registration of Water Titles: Key Issues in Developing Systems to Underpin Market Development Michael Woolston	76
7. Accounting for Water Flows: Are Entitlements to Water Complete and Defensible and Does this Matter? Anthea Coggan, Stuart Whitten and Nick Abel	94
8. Potential Efficiency Gains from Water Trading in Queensland John Rolfe	119
9. Water Trading Instruments in Australia: Some Thoughts on Future Development of Australian Water Markets David Campbell	139
10. Realising Environmental Demands in Water Markets Jeff Bennett	165
Index	180