

Foundations of High Impact Entrepreneurship

Zoltan J. Acs

*School of Public Policy
George Mason University
Fairfax, VA 22030-4444
USA
zacsQgmu.edu*

now

the essence of knowledge

Boston - Delft

Contents

Introduction

1 Definition of High Impact Entrepreneurship

2 Stylized Facts 9

2.1 Entrepreneurship Data Over Time 9

2.2 High Impact Firms 12

3 Entrepreneurship and Occupational Choice (J24-L26) 17

3.1 Occupational Choice 17

3.2 Non-financial Factors in Occupational Choice 19

3.3 Human Capital Theories and the Decision to Become an Entrepreneur 20

3.4 Likelihood of Entrepreneurial Success 24

4 Entrepreneurship, Innovation, and Technological Change (O3-L2) 27

4.1 The Knowledge Production Function 27

4.2 The Knowledge Spillover Theory of Entrepreneurship 29

4.3	Entrepreneurship as a Conduit for Knowledge Spillovers	31
4.4	The Knowledge Filter	34
5	High Impact Entrepreneurship and Capital Markets (G24-L26)	37
5.1	Liquidity Constraints	38
5.2	Information Asymmetries	39
5.3	Debt vs. Equity Financing	41
5.4	Private Equity and Venture Capital	43
5.5	Exit Strategies for Innovative Entrepreneurial Firms	46
5.6	The Globalization of the Venture Capital Market	49
6	Public Policy in an Entrepreneurial Economy	51
6.1	Defining "Entrepreneurship Policy"	52
6.2	Policies Relating to Fostering Occupational Choice	54
6.3	Policies Promoting Innovation and Entrepreneurship	63
6.4	Capital Markets Regulation and Finance	65
6.5	Regulation, Litigation, and the Rule of Law	67
7	Concluding Observations on the Literature on Entrepreneurship	69
	References	71