

PEACE

A History of Movements and Ideas

DAVID CORTRIGHT

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Acknowledgments	page ix
List of abbreviations	xi
T What is peace?	i
Idealism and realism	2
New wars	4
Defining terms	6
What's in a word?	8
"Pacifist" Japan?	II
Latin American and African traditions	12
Pacifism and "just war"	14
An outline of peace history	16
An overview of peacemaking ideas •	18
PART 1 MOVEMENTS	23
2 The first peace societies	25
Stirrings	26
Social origins and political agendas	29
Elihu Burritt: the learned blacksmith	32
The first peace congresses	34
The right of self-determination	35
Universalizing peace	38
The Hague Peace Conference	40
Not enough	43
3 Toward internationalism	45
Concepts and trends	46
The arbitration revolution	49
A League of Nations	52
Wilson's vision	54
The challenge of supporting the League	58
Outlawing war	62

4	Facing fascism	67
	Peace movement reborn	69
	Pledging war resistance	Jl
	Revolutionary antimilitarism	75
	The Peace Ballot	76
	Against appeasement	J(<)
	Imperial failure	81
	The neutrality debate	84
	The emergency peace campaign	85
	Losing Spain	87
	The end of "pacifism"	88
5	Debating disarmament	93
	Early reluctance	95
	Disarmament to the fore	<)d
	Challenging the "merchants of death"	9$
	The naval disarmament treaties	100
	World disarmament conference	103
	The collapse of disarmament	105
	Disarmament at fault?	106
6	Confronting the cold war	109
	Creating the United Nations	III
	The rise of world federalism	115
	Cold war collapse	117
	Militarization and resistance in Japan	120
	The leviathan	122
	Speaking truth to power	123
7	Banning the bomb	n6
	The shock of discovery	126
	Scientists organize	128
	The Baruch plan	131
	For nuclear sanity	133
	The beginning of arms control	136
	Nuclear pacifism in Japan	138
	The rise of the nuclear freeze	139
	God against the bomb	142
	A prairie fire	145
	Ferment in Europe	146
	Who won?	149
	Lessons from the end of the cold war	151
8	Refusing war	155
	Vietnam: a triangular movement	1J7
	Challenging presidents, constraining escalation	159

Social disruption and political costs	162
Resistance in the military	164
The rise of conscientious objection	167
The movement against war in Iraq	170
Winning while losing	174
Countering the "war on terror"	176
PART II THEMES	181
9 Religion	183
Eastern traditions	185
Study war no more	188
Salaam and jihad	190
Christianity	193
Anabaptists and Quakers	195
Tolstoy's anarchist pacifism	197
Social Christianity	199
Catholic peacemaking	200
Niebuhr's challenge	203
Beyond perfectionism	206
The nonviolent alternative	208
10 A force more powerful	211
Religious roots	213
Action for change	216
Coercion and nonviolence	218
The power of love	220
Spirit and method	222
Two hands	224
A tool against tyranny	227
Courage and strength	229
11 Democracy	233
Early voices	234
Democracy against militarism	236
Cobden: peace through free trade	237
Kant: the philosopher of peace	240
Human nature	243
For democratic control	246
The Kantian triad	249
The insights of feminism	255
Empowering women	257
12 Social justice	260
Socialism and pacifism: early differences	262

