Introduction to the Series	v
Contents of the Handbook	vii
Introduction
Income Distribution and Economics	1
A. B. ATKINSON and F. BOURGUIGNON
1. Factor share theories of income distribution	5
1.1. A simple static and competitive framework	6
1.2. Skilled/unskilled wage differential	9
1.3. CGE modelling	11
1.4. Capitalism and socialism	12
1.5. Limitations	13
2. Factor accumulation and income distribution	13
2.1. Stochastic theories	14
2.2. The dynastic consumption model as a benchmark and the ambiguity of bequest theories	15
2.3. Heterogeneity in the accumulation factor p and human capital theory	16
2.4. Market imperfections and wealth dependent accumulation rates	17
2.5. Accumulation rates with endogenous prices: distribution and growth	19
3. Labour market and income distribution	21
3.1. Selection theory as an economic explanation of skewness	22
3.2. Involuntary selection, segmentation and discrimination	23
3.3. Imperfect information on workers' and jobs' characteristics: sorting and matching	24
3.4. Imperfect observability of effort and agency problems	25
3.5. Conclusion of our theoretical tour d'horizon	26
4. Working with income distribution data	26
4.1. Representation of the distribution and inequality measurement	28
4.2. The recipient unit	34
4.3. Definition of income	36
4.4. The time dimension	38
4.5. Conclusion	40
5. Income distribution, economic inequality and social justice	41
5.1. The cake division problem: utilitarianism, welfarism and the measurement of inequality	42
5.2. Extending the concept of income to economic well-being and coping with heterogeneity	44
5.3. From the inequality of income to that of opportunities and social justice	46

5.4. Conclusion	50
6. Guide to the Handbook chapters	50
References	53
Chapter 1
Social Justice and Distribution of Income	59
A. K. SEN
1. Motivation	60
2. Informational basis of theories of justice	61
3. Utilitarianism and welfarist justice	63
4. Libertarian theories of justice	68
5. Rawlsian theory of justice	69
6. Quality of life, functionings and capabilities	73
7. Income inequality and non-income concerns	76
8. Is every subgroup a community?	79
9. Concluding remarks	80
References	81
Chapter 2
Measurement of Inequality	87
F. A. COWELL
1. Introduction	89
1.1. Inequality and income distribution	89
1.2. Overview	92
2. Distributional judgements	93
2.1. Income and the individual	93
2.2. Distributional concepts	94
2.3. Distributional and welfare axioms	96
3. Ranking distributions	100
3.1. Formal and informal approaches	101
3.2. First-order distributional dominance	102
3.3. Second-order distributional dominance	103
3.4. Tools for income distribution	104
4. An axiomatic approach to inequality measurement	107
4.1. Insights from information theory	109
4.2. Distance, rank and inequality	111
5. Welfare functions	113
5.1. Insights from choice under uncertainty	113

5.2. Basic concepts	113
5.3. Social welfare and inequality	118
6. The structure of inequality	123
6.1. The basic problem	123
6.2. Approaches to decomposition by subgroup	124
6.3. Applications	128
7. Multidimensional approaches	130
7.1. The general problem	130
7.2. Decomposition by income source	130
7.3. Income and needs	Ijl
7.4. Distributional change	133
8. Empirical implementation	133
8.1. Some general issues	133
8.2. Using sample data	135
8.3. A standard class of inequality measures	137
8.4. Extensions	140
8.5. Small sample problems	141
8.6. The problem of grouped data	142
8.7. Modelling with functional forms	145
8.8. Re-using inequality measures	149
9. A brief conclusion	149
References	150

Chapter 3

Three Centuries of Inequality in Britain and America	167
P. H. LINDERT
1. Choosing issues, measures, and methods	170
1.1. Redistributable income or living standards	170
1.2. The pre-fisc focus	171
1.3. Causal methods	172
1.4. The Kuznets conjecture	172
2. Was there a rise in inequality sometime before 1914?	173
2.1. Britain, 1688-1914	174
2.2. When did American inequality rise?	186
3. When incomes leveled	192
3.1. Britain	192
3.2. America	195
4. Rising inequality since the 1970s	200

4.1. Britain	200
4.2. America	201
5. The main sources of episodic inequality movements	205
6. Lessons about long-run changes	208
6.1. The Kuznets curve as a Milky Way	208
6.2. The Robin Hood paradox	208
References	210

Chapter 4

Historical Perspectives on Income Distribution: The Case of Europe	217
C. MORRISSON
1. Long-term evolution of national income distribution	220
1.1. Denmark	221
1.2. Norway	223
1.3. Sweden	225
1.4. Finland	228
1.5. The Netherlands	229
1.6. The German states and Germany	231
1.7. France	233
2. Intersectorial and intrasectorial inequality	239
3. Factors explaining the long-term evolution of distribution	249
Appendix A	256
Appendix B	257
Appendix C	258
References	259

Chapter 5

Empirical Evidence on Income Inequality in Industrial Countries	261
P. GOTTSCHALK and T. M. SMEEDING
1. Introduction	262
2. Conceptual and measurement issues	264
2.1. Ideal measure	264
2.2. Impact of measurement error	265
2.3. Definitions and measures	267
3. Differences in inequality across OECD countries	273
3.1. Data and measurement choices	273
3.2. Differences in the level of inequality	275

4. Differences in trends in inequality	285
4.1. Trend in income inequality: 1980 to 1995	285
4.2. Longer term trends	292
5. Mobility	294
6. Summary and research implications	296
References	304'

Chapter 6

Income Poverty in Advanced Countries	309
M. JANTTI and S. DANZIGER
1. Introduction	310
2. Conceptual and practical issues in the definition of poverty	311
2.1. A conceptual model of household income formation and poverty	311
2.2. Definitions of poverty	313
2.3. The space for poverty measurement	313
2.4. Equivalence scales	D1 6
2.5. Unit of analysis and infra-family distribution	322
2.6. The relevant accounting period	322
2.7. Longitudinal aspects of poverty	324
2.8. Poverty comparisons and sources	324
2.9. The poverty line	326
2.10. Aggregation: the choice of poverty index	326
2.11. Measurement errors and poverty measurement	332
3. Evidence about the extent of cross-sectional poverty	333
3.1. Changes in poverty within countries over time	333
3.2. Poverty orderings	336
4. Decomposing poverty across population groups	344
4.1. Comparing poverty risks of different groups	344
4.2. Poverty rankings of different demographic groups	345
5. The impact of public policy on poverty	348
5.1. Measuring the impact of public policy on poverty	349
5.2. Empirical evidence on the impact of public policy on poverty	353
6. Poverty dynamics	353
6.1. Intergenerational poverty dynamics	353
6.2. Family background and poverty	358
7. Summary	362
Appendix: Data sources	363
References	373

Chapter 7

Theories of the Distribution of Earnings	379
D. NEAL and S.ROSEN
0. Introduction	380
1. The characteristic skew of earnings distributions	381
1.1. Stochastic process theories	382
1.2. Correlated increments and common factors	383
1.3. Scale-of-operations effects and superstars	384
2. Selection theory	385
2.1. The Roy model	386
2.2. Selection on ability and stratification	389
2.3. Factor price equalization?	391
3. Learning, sorting and matching	391
3.1. The basic learning model	392
3.2. Sorting by comparative advantage	394
3.3. Matching models	397
3.4. Learning and general equilibrium	398
3.5. Summary	399
4. Human capital	400
4.1. Compensation for investments in training	400
4.2. Optimal investment	402
4.3. Labor supply	408
5. Insurance, agency and earnings	412
5.1. Attitudes toward risk	413
5.2. Effort incentives and compensation in internal labor markets	414
5.3. Agency and performance bonds	417
5.4. Efficiency wage models	419
6. Conclusion	421
References	423

Chapter 8

Theories of Persistent Inequality and Intergenerational Mobility	429
T. PIKETTY
1. Introduction	430
1.1. The dimensions of conflict about intergenerational mobility	430
1.2. Organization of this chapter	435
2. Persistent inequality and the family transmission of wealth	436
2.1. The contribution of inheritance to the persistence of inequality	436

2.2. The long-ran dynamics of wealth inequalities with exogenous savings	438
2.3. The long-ran dynamics of wealth inequalities with dynastic utility functions	440
2.4. "Active" vs. "passive" inheritance: the costs of redistribution	442
3. Persistent inequality and the family transmission of ability	446
3.1. The transmission of productive abilities	446
3.2. Efficient inequality and the costs of redistribution	448
3.3. Taste-based persistent inequality	451
4. Persistent inequality and the imperfect capital market	453
4.1. Credit constraints vs. first-best credit	453
4.2. What do we know about the importance of credit constraints for mobility?	456
4.3. Poverty traps vs. low-mobility traps	459
5. Persistent inequality and local segregation	462
5.1. Models of inefficient segregation into unequal neighborhoods	462
5.2. The policy implications of local segregation	464
5.3. Other levels of segregation	467
6. Persistent inequality and self-fulfilling beliefs	468
6.1. The theory of discrimination	468
6.2. Sociologists' theories of self-fulfilling inequality	471
References	473

Chapter 9

Macroeconomics of Distribution and Growth	477
G. BERTOLA
1. Introduction	479
1.1. Overview	479
1.2. Preliminaries	481
2. Aggregate accumulation and distribution	483
2.1. Neoclassical allocation and accumulation	483
2.2. Factor income distribution and growth	490
3. Investments, savings and financial markets	498
3.1. Finite lives	499
3.2. Self-financed investment	502
3.3. Idiosyncratic uncertainty	509
4. Politics and institutions	518
4.1. Political sources of distortionary taxation	520
4.2. Dimensions of heterogeneity and distribution	521
4.3. The menu and timing of policies	523

5. Empirical evidence	527
5.1. Convergence across countries	527
5.2. Growth and inequality within countries	531
6. Other directions of research	533
References	535

Chapter 10

Wealth Inequality, Wealth Constraints and Economic Performance	541
P. BARDHAN, S. BOWLES and H. GINTIS
1. Introduction	542
2. Wealth and efficiency when risk is noncontractible	546
3. Land contracts	560
4. Wealth, risk aversion and insurance	567
5. Wealth constraints and residual claimancy in team production	577
6. Initial asset inequality and cooperation on the local commons	587
7. Conclusion	595
References	597

Chapter 11

The Distribution of Wealth	605
J. B. DAVIES and A. F. SHORROCKS
1. Introduction	606
2. Theoretical approaches	608
2.1. Simple models of wealth distribution	609
2.2. Lifecycle accumulation	612
2.3. Intergenerational issues	621
2.4. Self-made fortunes	627
3. Empirical evidence on wealth inequality	628
3.1. Household surveys	629
3.2. Wealth tax data	635
3.3. Estate multiplier estimates	637
3.4. The investment income method	642
3.5. Direct wealth estimates for named persons	642
3.6. Portfolio composition	643
3.7. Explaining national differences and changes over time	645
4. Applied work on the determinants of wealth distribution	648
4.1. Simulation studies	648

4.2. Intergenerational wealth mobility	65 1
4.3. The aggregate importance of inherited versus lifecycle wealth	653
4.4. Empirical studies of transfer behaviour	657
5. Summary and conclusions	663
References	667

Chapter 12

Redistribution 677

R. BOADWAY and M. KEEN

1. Introduction	679
2. Motives for redistribution	679
2.1. Redistribution as social justice	680
2.2. Efficient redistribution	683
2.3. Redistribution as expropriation	701
3. The politics of redistribution	701
3.1. Direct democracy	701
3.2. Representative democracy	715
3.3. Interest groups	721
4. Constraints on redistribution	732
4.1. First-best redistribution	733
4.2. Imperfect information as a limit to redistribution	735
4.3. Restricted instruments: Linear taxes	743
4.4. Self-selection and nonstandard instruments	747
4.5. Altering the information assumptions	750
4.6. Cheats and liars	751
4.7. Time consistency	75j
4.8. Interjurisdictional mobility	755
4.9. Altruism and intergenerational redistribution	757
5. Measuring redistribution	757
5.1. Methodological issues in assessing redistribution	758
5.2. Fiscal incidence modelling strategies	764
5.3. Intertemporal issues	771
5.4. Explaining redistribution	776
6. Conclusions	777
References	779

*Chapter 13Income Distribution and Development 791

R. KANBUR

1. Introduction and overview	792
1.1. Some ground clearing	792
1.2. Overview	794
2. Distribution and the process of development	797
2.1. The theory of development and distribution	798
2.2. Econometric testing	804
2.3. The country case study approach	808
3. Distribution, development and policy	811
3.1. Policy and the Kuznetsian literature	811
3.2. Macroeconomic and external sector adjustment	813
3.3. Redistributive policies: land, education and transfers	818
4. Beyond national income distributions	824
4.1. Inter-group distribution	825
4.2. Intra-household distribution	828
4.3. Global distribution	830
5. Conclusion: directions for the the next decade	832
5.1. Country case studies	832
5.2. Increasing inequality	832
5.3. Disaggregation	833
5.4. Intra-household allocation	833
5.5. Alternative modes of redistribution	833
References	834

*Chapter 14Income Distribution, Economic Systems and Transition 843

J. FLEMMING and J. MICKLEWRIGHT

1. Introduction	844
2. Income distribution in socialist countries	848
2.1. Labour income in market and socialist economies	848
2.2. Data sources on income distribution under socialism	853
2.3. The distribution of earnings in socialist labour markets	857
2.4. Inequality of household incomes under socialism	862
2.5. Benefits in kind, subsidies and "fringe" benefits	871
3. Distribution in transition—theory	875
3.1. Transitional adjustment and the distribution of earnings	876

3.2. The scope for mitigating measures	880
3.3. Wage controls and unemployment	882
3.4. Reforming delivery of social services and collection of taxes	882
3.5. Restitution	883
4. Distribution in transition—evidence	884
4.1. Data sources in transition	886
4.2. The distribution of earnings in transition	890
4.3. Inequality of household incomes in transition	898
4.4. Interpreting the evidence	905
5. Conclusions	909
