

Civil Society

A Reader in History, Theory and Global Politics

Edited by

John A. Hall

Department of Sociology,

McGill University, Montreal, Canada

and

Frank Trentmann

School of History,

Classics and Archaeology Birkbeck College,

University of London

Contents

|   |           |
|---|-----------|
| Preface  | ix        |
| 1 Contests over Civil Society: Introductory Perspectives | 1  |
| John A. Hall and Frank Trentmann                         |           |
| Anxieties about difference                                      | 3         |
| Strains of commercial society                                   | 7         |
| Paradoxes of totality   | 12        |
| Praxis and theory   | 18        |
| Conclusions   | 20        |
| 2 Emergent Properties of Civil Society                   | 26 |
| Civil Society as Political Society                       | 26        |
| Civil society as political society – Richard Hooker             | 26        |
| Civil society vs. the state of nature – John Locke              | 30        |
| Natural societies compared –                                    |           |
| Gottfried Wilhelm Leibniz                                       | 33        |
| Toleration and its Limits                                | 37        |
| Of superstition and enthusiasm – David Hume                     | 37        |
| Remedies for sectarianism – Adam Smith                          | 39        |
| Freemasonry – Gotthold Lessing                                  | 43        |
| Civil society, Christianity, and state –                        |           |
| Rev. Dr. Thomas B. Clarke                                       | 48        |
| Civility, Sociability and Associational Life             | 53        |
| Good nature-Joseph Addison                                      | 53        |
| Gender and public life in the history of civilization –         |           |
| John Millar   | 55        |
| The threat of effeminacy – The Female Tatler             | 60        |
| Self-help and regulation: a women's friendly society –          |           |
| The Friends United  | 61        |
| Of sympathy and of self-command – Adam Smith                    | 66        |
| The craze of clubs ridiculed: 'of the Farting Club'             | 69        |
| Paradoxes of Commercial Life                             | 71        |
| The civilizing force of commerce – Montesquieu                  | 71        |
| The burden of civilization – Jean Jacques Rousseau              | 75        |
| The social benefits of deception – Adam Smith                   | 79        |

|   |            |
|---|------------|
| Civil Society, War, and Cosmopolitan Peace                               | 85         |
| The threat of commerce to republics – Adam Ferguson                             | 85         |
| The commercial sources of military power – Edward Gibbon                        | 88         |
|   |            |
| Civil Society, Nation, Cosmopolitanism                                   | 93         |
| Cosmopolitan vision – Immanuel Kant   | 93         |
|   |            |
| 3 Civil Society in the Midst of Modern Ideologies                        | 96  |
| Radicalism vs. Conservatism  | 96         |
| Established religion and social order – Edmund Burke                            | 96         |
| Rights of man – Thomas Paine  | 99         |
| Common will – Emmanuel-Joseph Sieyes  | 102        |
|   |            |
| Liberalism and Empire  | 106        |
| Public functions of associations – Alexis de Tocqueville                        | 106        |
| The dangers of public tranquillity – Alexis de Tocqueville                      | 116        |
| The legacy of the separation of classes – Alexis de Tocqueville                 | 118        |
| The 'barbarous' and 'anti-social' passions of the                               |            |
| Hindu-James Mill  | 119        |
| Imperial mission – A Village Missionary Meeting                                 | 124        |
|   |            |
| Bürgerliche Gesellschaft   | 129        |
| Corporation and ethical life – Georg Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel                    | 129        |
| Split consciousness – Karl Marx   | 135        |
| Natural hierarchies – Heinrich von Treitschke                                   | 138        |
|   |            |
| Associational Practices: Moral Order, Popular Emancipation, and Escapism | 143        |
| Reforming others – The Girls' Friendly Society                                  | 143        |
| Cooperation and emancipation – Mrs. Layton                                      | 146        |
| Sociability as nostalgia – Schlaraffische Club                                  |            |
| (Society of milk and honey)   | 149        |
|   |            |
| Organic Associationalism and the Critique of Liberalism                  | 152        |
| Gemeinschaft und Gesellschaft – Ferdinand Tonnies                               | 152        |
| The purposes of association – Otto von Gierke                                   | 155        |
| Communal life and the limits of the state –                                     |            |
| John Neville Figgis   | 160        |
| Federalism – Carlo Cattaneo   | 163        |
| Guild socialism – G.D.H. Cole   | 168        |
| Corporatism – Emile Durkheim  | 173        |
|   |            |
| 4 Under Assault  | 180 |
| Socialist repudiation – Vladimir Ilich Lenin                                    | 180        |

|  |            |
|--|------------|
| The crisis of parliamentary democracy – Carl Schmitt                                       | 182        |
| The cult of the member – Kurt Tucholsky  | 185        |
| Hegemony – Antonio Gramsci   | 186        |
| Socialist nationalism – Joseph Goebbels  | 190        |
| The state as a moral project – Victor M. Perez-Diaz  | 193        |
| The liberal threat to self-government – Michael J. Sandel                                  | 196        |
| 5 Revival   | 200 |
| The power of the powerless – Vaclav Havel  | 200        |
| The pitfalls of civil society for post-communism – Chris Hann                              | 203        |
| The myth of human self-identity – Leszek Kolakowski  | 206        |
| A setting of settings – Michael Walzer   | 209        |
| Maternal voices – Madres de Plaza de Mayo  | 212        |
| Churches, peace and human rights – Gerhard Ruden   | 216        |
| The decline of social visibility – Pierre Rosanvallon                                      | 218        |
| Deliberative politics – Jurgen Habermas  | 222        |
| 6 Contemporary Debates  | 227 |
| Communitarian Controversies   | 227        |
| The strange disappearance of civic America – Robert Putnam                                 | 227        |
| What if civic life didn't die? – Michael Schudson  | 231        |
| Unravelling from above – Theda Skocpol   | 234        |
| Bursts of civic reconstruction – Robert Putnam   | 238        |
| Ordering civil society – David Blunkett  | 239        |
| Compelled association – Nancy L. Rosenblum   | 244        |
| Associative democracy – Joshua Cohen and Joel Rogers                                       | 249        |
| Beyond Europe   | 255        |
| Civil society and public sphere in China – David Strand                                    | 255        |
| Hegemonic ideas and class in Chinese associations – Jeffrey N. Wasserstrom and Liu Xinyong | 261        |
| The inner and public practices of qigong – Nancy N. Chen                                   | 265        |
| The vitality of Islam – Ernest Gellner   | 268        |
| Religious, ethnic, and informal associations – Ashutosh Varshney                           | 271        |
| Pockets and deficits of civility in the Middle East – Augustus Richard Norton              | 275        |
| Civil society and the political imagination in Africa – John L. and Jean Comaroff          | 279        |
| Postcolonial perspectives – Partha Chatterjee  | 284        |
| Global Civil Society  | 287        |
| Global civil society? – John Keane   | 287        |

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| NonGovernmental Organizations in theUnited Nations – Dianne Otto | 292 |
| Civicus –Miguel Darcy de Oliveira and Rajesh Tandon                  | 297 |
| Further Reading   | 301 |
| Index   | 302 |