| PART I: REGIONAL CONVERGENCE AND DIVERGENCE IN THE EUROPEAN UNION: THEORETICAL DEBATE AND EMPIRICAL EVIDENCE | 1 |
| 1. The European Cohesion Problem | 2 |
| 1.1 Income Disparities in the European Union | 2 |
| 1.1.1 Income Disparities at the Country Level | 2 |
| 1.1.2 Income Disparities on the Regional Scale | 8 |
| 1.1.2.1 The Changing Geography of Regional Inequality | 11 |
| 1.1.2.2 The Development of Regional Income Disparities in Europe | 15 |
| 1.2 The Social Dimension of Cohesion: Unemployment Disparities, and Their Linkage with Income Disparities | 19 |
| 1.3 Major Theories in the Explanation of Regional Disparities – An Overview | 22 |
| References | 30 |
| 2. The Neo-Classical Model of Growth and Regional Convergence | 34 |
| 2.1 The Neo-Classical Model of Growth as the Cornerstone of the Convergence Hypothesis | 34 |
| 2.1.1 The Neo-Classical Model of Growth | 34 |
| 2.1.2 Transition Dynamics in the Neo-Classical Growth Model | 37 |
| 2.1.2.1 Capital Accumulation | 37 |
| 2.1.2.2 The Steady State | 39 |
| 2.1.2.3 The Balanced Growth Path of the Economy | 41 |
| 2.2 Convergence: The Theoretical Concept | 41 |
| 2.2.1 The Definition of Convergence | 41 |
| 2.2.2 How to Measure Convergence: The Convergence Coefficient in the Classical Convergence Analysis | 44 |
| 2.2.3 Convergence Time | 46 |
| 2.2.4 The Central Model for Convergence Studies | 46 |
| 2.2.5 The Relationship Between β -Convergence and σ -Convergence | 47 |
| 2.2.6 Convergence in the Solow Model with Endogenous Saving | 47 |

| 2.2.7 Convergence in the Open Economy: The Case of Regions and European Integration in a World of Neo-Classical Growth | 49 |
| 2.2.7.1 Openness of EU Regions | 49 |
| 2.2.7.2 Labour Migration | 58 |
| 2.2.7.3 Capital Mobility | 59 |
| 2.2.7.4 Free Trade | 63 |
| 2.2.7.5 Conclusions | 65 |
| 2.3 On the Methodologies of Empirical Convergence Analysis | 65 |
| 2.3.1 Estimating Absolute Convergence | 66 |
| 2.3.2 Estimating Conditional Convergence | 67 |
| 2.3.3 Panel Data Estimation of Convergence | 68 |
| 2.3.4 Spatial Dependency | 69 |
| 2.3.5 Intra-Distribution Dynamics, Markov Chain Analyses, and the Phenomenon of Convergence Clubs | 70 |
| 2.4 Convergence Studies for EU Regions: A Literature Review | 74 |
| 2.5 Policy Implications | 82 |
| References | 82 |
| 3. The Changing Pattern of Regional Convergence in Europe. Empirical Evidence from a Cross-Section and Panel Data Analysis | 86 |
| 3.1 Introduction | 86 |
| 3.2 The Econometric Methods Applied in This Study to Test for Convergence | 88 |
| 3.2.1 The Cross-Section Regression Analysis in the Tradition of Barro/Sala-i-Martin | 88 |
| 3.2.2 The Cross-Section Times Series Analysis with Panel Data Estimation Techniques | 90 |
| 3.3 The Data | 93 |
| 3.4 Results: Regional Convergence and Non-Convergence in Western Europe During the Past 40 Years | 96 |
| 3.4.1 Results from a Cross-Section Regression Analysis of European Regional Convergence | 96 |
| 3.4.1.1 Strong Convergence from 1950 to 1973 | 96 |
| 3.4.1.2 Slowing Convergence and Non-Convergence in the 1975–94 Period | 102 |
| 3.4.2 An Alternative Assessment of the Regional Convergence Process 1975–1994 with Panel Data Estimation | 111 |
| 3.5 Conclusions | 114 |
| References | 115 |
| 4. Further Economic Theories in the Convergence-Divergence Debate | 118 |
| 4.1 The Possibility of Regional Divergence in Models of Endogenous Growth | 118 |
| 4.1.1 Overview: Endogenous Growth Theory and Regional Convergence/Divergence | 118 |
| 4.1.2 A Simple Model of Endogenous Growth | 121 |
| 4.1.3 Increasing Returns at the Heart of Endogenous Growth | 124 |

| | |
|---|-----|
| 4.1.4 Which Growth Paradigm for European Regions: Endogenous or Neo-Classical Growth? | 128 |
| 4.1.5 Endogenous Growth in European Regions with Integration | 133 |
| 4.1.5.1 Endogenous Growth with Free Trade | 133 |
| 4.1.5.2 Endogenous Growth with Factor Mobility | 145 |
| 4.1.6 Conclusions | 148 |
| 4.2 The Contribution of the New Economic Geography in the Convergence-Divergence Debate | 149 |
| 4.2.1 Introduction | 149 |
| 4.2.2 The Origins of Economic Geography | 151 |
| 4.2.3 The Main Causes of Agglomerations | 153 |
| 4.2.4 Divergence and Convergence in Economic Geography Models with Integration | 155 |
| 4.2.4.1 The Basic Model: Core-Periphery Pattern with Integration of Two Regions of Different Market Size, Equal Endowments and No Interregional Migration | 156 |
| 4.2.4.2 Core-Periphery Pattern with Integration of Two Equal Size Regions with Migration and Vertical Industry Linkages | 160 |
| 4.2.4.3 Core-Periphery Pattern in Economic Geography Models with Endogenous Growth | 167 |
| 4.2.5 Does Economic Geography Govern Regional Growth Patterns in the EU? | 173 |
| 4.3 Conclusions | 178 |
