

Building Chaos

An international comparison of deregulation in the construction industry

Edited by

Gerhard Bosch and Peter Philips

Routledge

Taylor & Francis Group

LONDON AND NEW YORK

Contents

List of figures	ix
List of tables	xi
List of contributors	xiii
Acknowledgments	xvi
1 Introduction	1
GERHARD BOSCH AND PETER PHILIPS
The focus of our studies	1
A general framework for understanding the construction industry	4
A comparison of construction in nine countries	12
Summary	21
2 The Netherlands
Rules in revision: high-quality production in the Dutch construction industry	24
MARC VAN DER MEER
Introduction	24
Economic characteristics	25
The regulation of product and labor markets	28
The qualification structure and training	36
Labor market characteristics	39
• Challenges to labor market regulation	41
Institutional change and further modernization	44
3 Germany
The labor market in the German construction industry	48
GERHARD BOSCH AND KLAUS ZUHLKE-ROBINET
Introduction	48
Economic evolution	49

vi Contents

	Employment and unemployment	53
	Regulations in the product market	57
	The regulation of the construction labor market	60
	Changes and challenges	64
	Conclusion	69
4	Denmark
	Searching for innovation	73
	NIKOLA J LUBANSKI
	Introduction	73
	Economic evolution	75
	Employment	77
	Regulations in the product market	78
	Regulations in the labor market	81
	Changes and challenges	86
	Conclusion	91
5	Canada
	Labor market regulation and labor relations in the construction industry: the special case of Quebec within the Canadian context	95
	JEAN CHAREST
	Introduction	95
	Overview of the construction industry in Canada and the Quebec economy	96
	Industrial relations system and labor market regulation	99
	Pressures on the industry and on labor market regulation	107
	Conclusion	110
6	Australia
	The Australian construction industry: union control in a disorganized industry	114
	ELSA UNDERHILL
	Introduction	114
	Product market and industry structure	116
	Employment in building and construction	121
	Employment regulation and wage determination	124
	Imperiled training	130
	Conclusion	133

Spain
Spain down the low track	138
JUSTIN BYRNE AND MARC VAN DER MEER
Introduction	138
Economic evolution: a crucial but turbulent sector	140
Productive structure	141
The labor market	146
The corporatist illusion: social partners and labor relations	150
The dark side of the boom: danger at work	154
Conclusions	156
The United States
Dual worlds: the two growth paths in US construction	161
PETER PHILIPS
Introduction	161
Economic and institutional context	161
The construction labor market	164
The challenge of human capital accumulation	167
Human capital accumulation under collective bargaining	171
The results of human capital accumulation: greater labor productivity	176
Public policy towards the construction industry	179
Conclusion: pay me now or pay me later	184
The United Kingdom
Privatization, fragmentation, and inflexible flexibilization in the UK construction industry	188
MARK HARVEY
Introduction	188
Historical context	188
The economic evolution of the construction market	189
The changing structure of the industry	193
Labor markets and the central role of self-employment in UK construction	197
The consequences of mass self-employment	202
Conclusion	207

10 Republic of Korea
The drivers for change in the Korean construction industry: regulation and deregulation	210
JIN HO YOON AND BYUNG-GOO KANG
Introduction	210
The structure of the Korean construction industry and government regulations	211
Free-fall in the construction labor market	219
Recent deregulation policies and their impacts on the construction industry	228
Conclusion	230
 Index	 234