

Background Studies for the ECB's Evaluation of its Monetary Policy Strategy

Editor:

Otmar Issing

in co-operation with:

Ignazio Angeloni

Vitor Gaspar

Hans-Joachim Klockers

Klaus Masuch

Sergio Nicoletti-Altimari

Massimo Rostagno

Frank Smets

EUROPEAN CENTRAL BANK

Contents

Foreword by Otmar Issing	5
1. Overview of the background studies for the evaluation of the ECB's monetary policy strategy.	9
Background studies related to the ECB's definition of price stability
2. The definition of price stability: choosing a price measure by Gonzalo Camba-Mendez	31
3. Definition of price stability, range and point inflation targets: The anchoring of long-term inflation expectations by Efram Castelnuovo, Sergio Nicoletti-Altimari and Diego Rodriguez Palenzuela	43
4. Relevant economic issues concerning the optimal rate of inflation by Gonzalo Camba-Mendez, Juan Angel Garcia and Diego Rodriguez Palenzuela	91
5. Downward nominal wage rigidity and the long-run Phillips curve: Simulation-based evidence for the euro area by Gunter Coenen	127
6. Zero lower bound: Is it a problem in the euro area? by Gunter Coenen	139
7. Inflation targets and the liquidity trap by Matt Klaeffling and Victor Lopez Perez	157
Background studies related to the two pillars of the ECB's monetary policy strategy and the role of money
8. The role of money in monetary policy making by Klaus Masuch, Sergio Nicoletti-Altimari, Huw Pill and Massimo Rostagno	187
9. Why has broad money demand been more stable in the euro area than in other economies? A literature review by Alessandro Calza and Joao Sousa	229
10. Is the demand for euro area M3 stable? by Annick Bruggeman, Paola Donati and Anders Warne	245
11. Forecasting real GDP: What role for narrow money? by Claus Brand, Hans-Eggert Reimers and Franz Seitz	301
Annex A ECB Press Release: The ECB's monetary policy strategy	329
Annex B Further references to relevant papers already published by the ECB	331
List of Contributors	335