

MARKETING COMMUNICATION

PRINCIPLES AND PRACTICE

Richard J. Varey

LONDON & NEW YORK

Contents

List of	figures	xi
List of case studies		xiv
List of boxes	,	xv
List of tables	'	xviii
Structure of the book		xx
Preface		xxiii

1 An introduction to marketing communication	1
Learning points	1
Introduction	1
The marketing task	2
Marketing, consumption, and communication	4
Marketing as a management technology: micro-marketing	6
Marketing as a social process: macro-marketing	9
Weaknesses in traditional textbook explanations of marketing	9
Weaknesses in traditional textbook explanations of marketing communication	10
The contrived evolution of human communication technologies	13
What do you think?	15
Rationale for the book	16
Further reading	17

2 A communication concept for communicating	18
Learning points	18
Introduction	18
The orthodox view of marketing communication	20
Three perspectives on messages	31
Communicator characteristics	33
Zones of meaning	35
Communication networks	37
Communication and culture	37
What do you think?	39
Further reading	40
3 Consumer behaviour and communication	41
Learning points	41
Introduction	42
People as consumers	43
Theories of purchase behaviours	43
How can we explain buyer behaviour?	47
The purchase decision-making process	56
Some further key concepts	59
Mindfulness	62
The appreciative system	63
Diffusion of innovations	64
Personal influence and opinion leaders	65
Corporate buying behaviour	67
Implications for managers	69
What do you think?	71
Further reading	71
4 Marketing communication ideology	72
Learning points	72
Introduction	72
Communication is relational	73
Communication as a mode of exchange	75
Marketing communication in the value-creating system	79
Cooperation, collaboration, competition	81
Marketing communication objectives	82
Messages	86
Market education	87
Response to marketing action	88
What do you think?	93
Further reading	93
5 Managing with stakeholders in mind	95
Learning points	95
Introduction	95
The marketing environment	96
Audiences, markets, and publics	97

Stakeholding	98
Do we have a stakeholder society in the UK?	100
The third- and fourth-wave society of the new millennium	102
The inclusive company	103
Managing with stakeholders in mind	104
Corporate community	105
Concepts of communication and communication purpose	108
Marketing channels and networks	109
What do you think?	110
Further reading	111
6 Intercultural communication	112
Learning points	112
Introduction	113
Culture and marketing	114
Culture as communication	114
Cross-cultural consumer behaviour	116
International strategies	118
International advertising	121
What do you think?	123
Further reading	124
7 The marketing mix as social communicator	125
Learning points	125
Introduction	125
The elements of the modern marketing mix	127
The traditional communication tools	136
Buyer state	137
Communicating in marketing channels	137
Investing in word-of-mouth promotion	140
Consumer vs. business to business	141
Choosing communication activities	142
Beyond the 4 Ps	146
What do you think?	147
Further reading	148
8 The brand communicator	149
Learning points	149
Introduction	150
Cognitive response to marketing interventions	150
What is a brand?	151
Communicating behaviour and brand offers	154
The social significance of brands	156
Brand loyalty	158
Brand preferences	158
Perceptual (cognitive) mapping	159
What do you think?	163
Further reading	163

9 Selecting media for communicating	165
Learning points	165
Introduction	165
Product placement: 'stealth advertising'	166
Advertorials: storytelling	168
Marketing communication through new media	169
Publicity and word of mouth	176
Exhibitions and trade shows	177
Sales promotions	177
Media selection	181
Need-satisfaction theory	184
The changing structure of marketing media	184
The impact of the Internet	185
Implications for marketing communications management	185
What do you think?	190
Further reading	191
10 Identity, image, and reputation	192
Learning points	192
Introduction	192
Corporate reputation	194
Key concepts and their relevance to marketing	195
The significance of reputation to business performance	198
The constitution of corporate reputation	202
The management of corporate reputation	204
Public relations as impression management	206
Marketing image	208
Marketing public relations	208
What do you think?	210
Further reading	211
11 Internal marketing communication	212
Learning points	212
Introduction	213
What is internal marketing?	213
A route to marketing orientation	216
Corporate identification, identity, image, and reputation	218
Internal marketing as a corporate integrator	221
What do you think?	228
Further reading	228
12 Relationship marketing	230
Learning points	230
Introduction	230
Managing dialogue	231
Relationship as value added	232
Relationship status	233
Transaction vs. relationship approach	235

One-to-one marketing	237
The retention strategy	238
Customer relationship management	239
Affinity marketing	240
Reverse marketing	243
Efficient marketing communication	243
What do you think?	247
Further reading	248
13 Integrated marketing communication	249
Learning points	249
Introduction	250
What does integration mean?	250
Starting with the customer	251
Why has IMC become so prominent in recent years?	254
The benefits of IMC	255
Obstacles to adoption of IMC	255
What do you think?	266
Further reading	266
14 Advertising as communicating	268
Learning points	268
Introduction	269
Origins of advertising	270
What is advertising?	271
Advertising knowledge	271
What can advertising accomplish?	272
Advertising objectives, strategy, and tactics	275
Creative strategies	278
Executional formats	278
Comparative advertising	282
Internet advertising	282
What do you think?	286
Further reading	286
15 Communication strategies and objectives	287
Learning points	287
Introduction	287
Marketing communication objectives	289
Communication strategy	292
The strategy document	292
Push-and-pull communication systems	294
The two-part strategy	295
Advertising strategies	297
Communication strategies and product life cycle	297
What do you think?	301
Further reading	301

CONTENTS

16 Planning, evaluating, and controlling the marketing communication system and programme	303
Learning points	303
Introduction	304
Beyond traditional marketing communications	305
The planning process	306
Remember internal marketing?	308
Corporate memory as a planning aid	309
Integration of communication activities	311
Effective strategy	312
Evaluation of communicative action	313
Evaluating marketing communication activity	315
Advertising effectiveness	316
Controlling communication effort	320
The cost of communication effort	321
The allocation of funds	321
What do you think?	322
Further reading	323
17 Professionalism	324
Learning points	324
Introduction	325
Managing ethically	325
The core assumptions of consumerism	326
The ethical consumer	328
Managerialism and systematic distortion of communication	329
Ethical communication	333
The social responsibilities of the marketer	334
What can go wrong?	336
The job of the marketing communication manager	337
What do you think?	340
Further reading	341
18 Contemporary marketing communication, corporate communication, and . . . the future?	342
Learning points	342
Introduction	343
Changing consumer behaviour and marketing situation	343
Changing marketing communication practices	345
Communication in e-commerce	345
The corporate communication system of managing	347
Further reading	357
Bibliography	360
Index	378