

Management and Labour in Europe

The Industrial Enterprise in Germany,
Britain and France

Christel Lane

*Lecturer in Sociology
The Business School
University of Aston*

EDWARD ELGAR

Contents

List of Tables	viii
List of Figures	ix
Acknowledgements	x
Introduction	1
Economic profiles of France, Germany and Britain	2
Does manufacturing industry matter?	12
Objectives of the book	13
General approach and content of the study	16
1 Business Organization in Comparative Perspective:
The Theoretical Debate	19
Industrialism and the contingency perspective	21
The approach from capitalism	25
The approach from culture	27
The culturalist perspective	28
The institutional perspective	31
2 Work in the Business Enterprise: The Organizational
Structure of European Business Enterprises	39
The shape of organizations	40
Work structuring at 'works' level	42
Work structuring at the level of intermediate staff	44
Organizational shapes and organizational functioning	48
Explaining differences in national organizational shapes	52
Structures of business governance	55
3 Vocational Education and Training	62
Initial vocational education and training	64
Further vocational education and training	74
Advanced vocational education and training	76
The training of engineers	78
Skill profiles and organizational effectiveness	81

4	Managers and Management Style	86
	Managers in comparative perspective	87
	Social origins of managers	88
	Management education	89
	Management style	96
5	Management Control	116
	Planning as a pre-condition for effective control	120
	The nature of top management control	122
	Operational control: production and marketing	125
	Reward structure	128
	Strategies of control	132
6	Job Design and Work Organization	137
	Job design and work organization: some concepts and issues	137
	Scientific management or Taylorism	140
	The strategy of 'responsible autonomy'	144
	Taylorism in Britain, Germany and France	144
	The reaction against Taylorism I: new forms of work organization	156
7	New Technology and Changes in Work Organization	163
	The reaction against Taylorism II: the strategy of flexible specialization	163
	The most important forms of new technology	164
	Flexible specialization in Germany	168
	Flexible specialization in Britain and France?	181
8	The System of Industrial Relations	196
	Historical developments of union movements	197
	Union membership and organization	200
	The impact of institutional frameworks on the quality of industrial relations	209
	Recent changes in industrial relations	217
9	Industrial Democracy	224
	Industrial democracy in Germany	226
	Industrial democracy in France	239
	Industrial democracy in Britain	241
	Participation in comparative perspective	243

10	Business and the State: Industrial Policy	249
	Industrial Policy	251
11	Business and the State: Employment Policy	272
	Welfare capitalism	272
	Labour market rigidities during the 1970s: the national patterns	274
	Market capitalism	277
	The flexibility thesis	278
	The trend towards flexibility: the evidence	279
	The impact of the flexibility drive	288
	Conclusions	292
	Bibliography	302
	Index	317