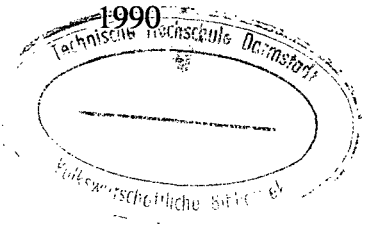
Bes 32

Recent Developments in the Theory of INVOLUNTARY UNEMPLOYMENT

Carl Davidson
Michigan State University



W.E. UPJOHN INSTITUTE for Employment Research
Kalamazoo, Michigan

VB TU Darmstadt
51550587

CONTENTS

1 Introduction 1

2 Search Theory 7
Labor Market Dynamics 10
The Partial-Partial Approach 13
Optimal Search When Unemployed 13
Optimal Search When Employed 18
Other Insights 19
Criticisms 20
The Reservation Wage Approach 21
The Basic Problem 21
Solutions 24
The Trade Friction Approach 31
Externalities 31
Multiple Equilibria, Feedback Mechanisms, and Business Cycles 39
The Value of a Job 45
Limitations 47
Employment Policies, Unemployment and Efficiency 48
Transfer Payment, Unemployment and Duration 49
Minimum Wages, Employment Agencies, and Aggregate Demand Management 52
Efficiency 54
Conclusions 55
Notes 55

3 Non-Walrasian Equilibria 59
Quantity vs. Price Adjustment 62
Fixed Prices in General Equilibrium 67
Walrasian Equilibria 67
Non-Walrasian Equilibria 70
Properties of Non-Walrasian Equilibria 72
Other Insights 82
Endogenous Pricing 84
First Attempts 84
Imperfect Competition and Coordination Failures 86
Policy Implications 91
Notes 93

4 Implicit Contracts 95
The Basic Model 98
Setting the Stage 98
Wage Rigidity 100
Other Difficulties 107
Extensions of the Basic Model 110
Asymmetric Information 110
Implementation Problems 119
What Next? 120
Policy Implications 121
Notes 123

5 More on Wage Rigidity: Efficiency Wages and Insider/Outsider Workers 125
Introduction 125
Efficiency Wages 126
Endogenous Effort and Unemployment 128
Criticisms and Evidence 134
Policy Implications 138
The Insider/Outsider Theory of Unemployment 140
Bargaining, Non-Walrasian Wages and Involuntary Unemployment 141
Turnover Costs and On-the-Job Harassment 144
Criticism and Evidence 145
Policy Implications 146
Notes 148

6 Conclusion 149
Empirical Verification 150
Similarities in Policy Implications 153

References 157

Index 167