

Donald I. Grinberg

HOUSING IN THE NETHERLANDS 1900-1940

Foreword by J. B. Bakema

FACHGRUPPE STADT
BIBLIOTHEK
TECHN. HOCHSCHULE DARMSTADT

inventar-Nr. 83/218

Delft University Press / 1982

Contents

- List of illustrations 7
- Foreword by J.B. Bakema 9
- Acknowledgements 11
- 1. Introduction 13
- 2. The pre-industrial period 15
  - Spatial openness
  - The town/country dichotomy
  - The street and the dwelling
  - The hofje
- 3. Industrialization and urbanization 19
- 4. Housing production before 1900 21
  - Industrial housing
  - Speculative housing
  - Housing associations
  - Agneta Park
- 5. Dwelling conditions before 1900 27
  - Rural poverty
  - The typical row house
  - Hand-me-down housing
  - Back-to-back dwellings
  - The closed block: double exposure flats
  - Cupboard beds and alcovès
- 6. The housing act of 1902 33
  - Municipal regulation before the Act
  - National reform precedents
  - The Act: building regulations
  - The Act: agents of productions
  - The Act: city planning
  - The context for progress
- 7. The influence of Camillo Sitte 42
  - H.P. Berlage
  - J.J.P. Oud
- 8. New role for the architect 46
  - Socialism
  - Artist, ego, and universalism
  - The dwelling as cultural symbol
  - Expressionism and the Amsterdam School
  - The Nieuwe Zakelijkheid
- 9. The garden city tradition 54
  - Introduction of the tuinstad idea
  - Romanticism
  - Paternalism
  - Utopia and self-sufficiency
  - H.P. Berlage
  - Polarization and critique

- Influence
Preliminary tendencies to spatial openness
- 10. Collectivity and communal space 67
The influence of hygiene
The hoffe tradition
Communal garden prototype
Front and back: Tuinwijk Zuid, Haarlem
In and out: Spangen, Rotterdam
J.J.P. Oud
Symbolism of collectivity
- 11. Standardization 87
Crisis 1917-18
Berlage and 'Normalisatie'
Concrete village: Watergraafsmeer, Amsterdam
J.J.P. Oud and De Stijl
The problem of the prototype
- 12. Ideology: ends and means 101
↪ De 8
Union with Opbouw
- 13. The new conception of space 104
Orientation and light
Universal space
Flexibility
- 14. Spatial openness: high-rise 112
The image of America
Romantic socialism
Propagation of the image
Aesthetic applications
Rationalization
Rejection: Commissie voor den Hoogen Bouw
The Bergpolder Flats, Rotterdam
The 1934 Competition for Inexpensive Workers' Dwellings
Final rejection before the war
- 15. Conclusion 131
Notes 133
Bibliographical note 139
Index 141