

INDUSTRIAL MARKETING STRATEGY

FREDERICK E. WEBSTER, JR.

The Amos Tuck School of Business Administration
Dartmouth College

TECHNISCHE HOCHSCHULE DARMSTADT
Fachbereich 1
Gesamtbibliothek
Betriebswirtschaftslehre
Inventar-Nr. :	18.181
Abstell-Nr. :	A 28/954
Sachgebiete:	5.0
	5.3

00247771

A RONALD PRESS PUBLICATION

JOHN WILEY & SONS, New York • Chichester • Brisbane • Toronto

Contents

ONE

THE NATURE AND SCOPE OF INDUSTRIAL MARKETING 1

- The Nature of Industrial Goods and Services, 6
- Industrial Customers, 9
 - Derived Demand, 10
- How Industrial Marketing Differs from Consumer Marketing, 11
 - Functional Interdependence, 15
 - Product Complexity, 15
 - Buyer-Seller Interdependence, 17
 - Buying Process Complexity, 17
- Management Science in Industrial Marketing, 18
- The Concept of Effective Marketing Strategy, 19
- Summary, 21

TWO

PURCHASING MANAGEMENT AND BUYER BEHAVIOR 23

- Purchasing Objectives, 23
- The Materials Management Concept, 25
- The Buying Decision Process, 27
 - Buying Decision Phases, 28
 - Types of Buying Situations, 28
- Models of Organizational Buyer Behavior, 29
 - The Sheth Model, 30
 - The Webster and Wind Model, 33
 - The Choffray and Lilien Model, 38
- Purchasing Management Activities and Buying Strategy, 40

xii CONTENTS

- Value Analysis, 40
- Make-or-Buy Decisions, 42
- Vendor Evaluation, 43
- Requirements Planning, 44
- Purchasing Contracts, 46
- Summary, 48

THREE

BUYER-SELLER RELATIONSHIPS

50

- Buyer-Salesman Interaction, 51
 - Sources of Role Expectations for the Industrial Salesman, 51
 - Determinants of How the Buyer "Plays His Role," 53
 - Determinants of How the Industrial Salesman "Plays His Role," 56
- The Sales Presentation, 57
- The Buying-Selling Situation, 58
- Influence Processes, 60
 - Persuasion, 60
 - Compromise, 61
 - Bargaining, 61
 - Negotiation, 62
- Reciprocity, 64
- Dealing with Customers' Customers, 67
- Customer Service, 68
- Summary, 70

FOUR

INDUSTRIAL MARKET SEGMENTATION

73

- The Concept of Market Segmentation, 74
 - Criteria for Segmentation Variables, 74
 - Strategic Alternatives, 75
- Unique Aspects of Industrial Market Segmentation, 76
- A Two-Stage Approach to Industrial Market Segmentation, 79
 - Macrosegmentation, 80
 - Microsegmentation, 80
- Vertical Market Segmentation, 85

Segmentation in Practice, 87
 Summary, 88

FIVE

PRODUCT STRATEGY AND NEW PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT 90

The Product Life Cycle, 91
 Product Portfolio Analysis, 93
 The New Product Development Process, 95
 Idea Generation, 96
 Customers as Sources of New Product Ideas, 97
 Screening, 99
 Business Analysis, 101
 Development, 102
 Testing, 104
 Commercialization and Product Positioning, 106
 Causes of Industrial New Product Failure, 108
 Summary, 109

SIX

DEVELOPING MARKETS FOR NEW INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTS 112

Diffusion of Innovations, 112
 The Adoption Decision Process, 113
 Uses of Information Sources by Adoption Decision Stage, 115
 Factors Influencing the Intrafirm Rate of Adoption, 117
 Adopter Categories, 118
 Characteristics of Earlier Adopters, 119
 Influence of Market Structure, 121
 Quality of Marketing Effort, 121
 Characteristics of the Innovation Influencing Rate of Diffusion, 122
 Market Segmentation Strategy for New Products, 124
 Macrosegmentation, 124
 Vertical Segmentation, 125
 Microsegmentation, 128
 Summary, 132

SEVEN

PRICING STRATEGY

134

- Price as Part of the Product Offering, 134
- Formulating Pricing Strategy, 136
- Pricing Objectives, 137
 - “Skimming” vs. “Penetration” Strategies, 138
- List Prices and Discounts, 139
 - Quantity Discounts, 140
 - Functional Discounts, 140
 - Discounts to Meet Competition, 141
- Pricing Methods, 143
 - Cost-Based Pricing, 143
 - The Learning Curve, 144
 - Value-Based Pricing, 145
 - Constraints on Value-Based Pricing, 148
- Competitive Bidding and Negotiation, 149
 - Bidding Models, 150
- Price Leadership, 152
 - Strategic Options, 154
- Summary, 156

EIGHT

INDUSTRIAL DISTRIBUTION STRATEGY

160

- The Nature of Industrial Distribution, 160
- Push vs. Pull Strategies, 161
- Functions of the Middleman, 162
- Types of Industrial Middlemen, 164
 - Manufacturers’ Representatives, 164
 - Industrial Distributors, 166
- Some Trends Influencing Industrial Distributors, 168
- Perceptions of the Industrial Distributor, 170
 - How the Distributor Views Himself, 170
 - How the Manufacturer Sees the Distributor, 171
- Defining the Distributor’s Role in Marketing Strategy, 172
 - The Role of the Manufacturer’s Salesman, 173

Market Coverage and Product Availability, 173
Market Development and Account Solicitation, 174
Technical Advice and Service, 174
Market Information, 175
Issues in the Supplier–Distributor Relationship, 175
Direct Accounts, 175
Distributor Management, 176
Inventory Levels, 176
Second Lines, 177
Adding Distributors and Overlapping Territories, 177
The Manufacturer’s Responsibility to the Distributor, 178
Physical Distribution–Logistics, 180
The Total Distribution Cost Concept, 180
Summary, 182

NINE

MANAGING THE INDUSTRIAL SALES FORCE

185

The Industrial Sales Management Program, 185
Defining the Role of Personal Selling, 186
As Part of the Product Offering, 186
As Part of the Communications Mix, 189
The Job Description, 191
Sales Force Organization and Management, 191
Types of Sales Organizations, 191
The Organizational Hierarchy, 196
Recruitment and Selection, 197
Training, 199
Supervision and Motivation, 200
Compensation, 203
Evaluation and Control, 206
Sales Effort Allocation, 207
The Sales Response Function, 208
The CALLPLAN Model, 209
Assigning Salesmen to Territories and Accounts, 211
Account Management, 212
Summary, 213

TEN

INDUSTRIAL MARKETING COMMUNICATIONS 216

- The Hierarchy of Effects, 217
- Marketing Communication Objectives, 219
- The Industrial Marketing Communications Mix, 220
 - The ADVISOR Studies, 222
- Source Effect: The Importance of Image, 227
 - The Concept of Company Image, 227
 - Source Credibility, 228
 - Influence of Advertising on Salesmen's Effectiveness, 229
- Developing the Industrial Marketing Communication Program, 230
 - Setting Communication Objectives, 231
 - Defining the Target Audience, 232
 - Determining Budget Level, 233
 - Developing Message Strategy, 236
 - Selecting Media, 238
 - Evaluating Results, 242
- Summary, 244

ELEVEN

INDUSTRIAL MARKETING PLANNING 247

- The Concept of Strategic Planning, 247
- Appraisal of Strengths and Weaknesses, 248
 - The Marketing Audit, 249
- Definition of Distinctive Competence, 255
- Environmental Analysis, 258
- Goal Definition, 259
- Identifying and Selecting Product/Market Opportunities, 260
 - The Product Portfolio, 261
 - The Importance of Market Share, 266
- Setting Objectives, 269
- Developing Marketing Programs, 270
- Summary, 272

INDEX