

Need Assessment

A Key to User-oriented Product Innovation

Knut Holt

University of Trondheim

*Norwegian Institute of Technology
Trondheim*

Horst Geschka

Unternehmensberatung und Seminare Darmstadt

Giovanni Peterlongo

IFAP

Rome

TECHNISCHE HOCHSCHULE DARMSTADT
Fachbereich 1
Gesamtbibliothek
Betriebswirtschaftslehre
Inventar-Nr. :	36.070
Abstell-Nr. :	A31/175
Sachgebiete:	1.8.2.3
	5.2.1.7

00270090

JOHN WILEY & SONS

Chichester · New York · Brisbane · Toronto · Singapore

Contents

Preface	viii
Conclusions and Recommendations	xi
Part One—Need Assessment: A Neglected Problem?	1
I. How Do They Handle It?	2
1. United Kingdom	2
2. U.S.A.	3
3. Other countries	4
4. Evaluation	5
II. What Have We Found?	5
1. Models	5
2. Definitions	8
3. Results	10
III. How Can It Be Done?	13
1. The Delta company	13
2. The Gamma foundry	21
IV. Conclusion	26
V. References	27
Part Two—Action	29
I. How Can Propositions Regarding Need Assessment Behaviour Stimulate Action?	29
1. General propositions	29
2. Organization-related propositions	31
3. Propositions relating to personal attributes and behaviour .	32
4. Propositions relating to specific industries	33

II.	What Specific Recommendations For Action Can Be Offered?	36
1.	Analysis of the situation.....	36
2.	Need assessment in current business areas	41
3.	Need assessment in new business areas	44
4.	Need assessment in specific markets.....	45
5.	Assessment of future needs	48
6.	Need specification	49
7.	Organizational aspects.....	50
8.	Implementation.....	52
III.	Conclusion	54
IV.	References	55
Part Three—Methods		56
I.	How Can Internal Information be Utilized?	56
1.	Customer information.....	56
2.	Staff information.....	59
II.	How Can External Information Be Utilized?	61
1.	Government information	61
2.	Competitor information	64
3.	Trade fairs.....	66
4.	Literature.....	68
5.	Experts	71
III.	How Can Users Participate In Need Assessment Activities?	74
1.	User questioning.....	74
2.	User employment	79
3.	User projects	81
4.	Multivariate methods.....	83
5.	Dealer questioning	85
IV.	How Can Analysis Of Existing Situations Reveal Needs?	88
1.	User observation	88
2.	Active need experience	90
3.	Simulation	94
V.	How Can Creativity Techniques Be Used For Need Assessment Purposes?	97
1.	Brainstorming	97
2.	Confrontation	101
3.	Morphological analysis	103
4.	Progressive abstraction	105
5.	Value analysis	107

VI.	How Can Forecasting Techniques Be Used For Assessment Of Future Needs?	108
	1. Delphi method	108
	2. Scenario writing	110
	3. System analysis	113
VII.	What Other Methods Are Available For Need Assessment Purposes?	115
	1. Informal contact	115
	2. Analysis of environmental requirements	118
VIII.	Conclusion	120
IX.	References	121
Appendices		125
I.	What Examples Can We Offer of Good Need Assessment Practice?	125
	1. The Alpha company	125
	2. The Beta ship research institute	133
	3. The Epsilon company	139
II.	What Have We Found About Provision Of Need-related Information In German, Italian and Norwegian Firms?	147
	1. Mechanical equipment for institutional users	147
	2. Electronic equipment for institutional users	157
	3. Consumer durables	167
	4. Comparison of industries	173
III.	How Can Systematic Need Assessment Improve Technology Transfer to Industrializing Countries	176
	1. Industrialization	176
	2. The transfer of technology	177
	3. Need assessment	183
	4. References	184
Index		185