

Corporate Capitalism in Japan

Hiroshi Okumura

Professor of Economics

Chuo University

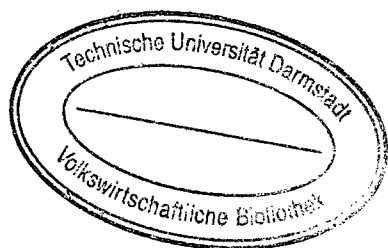

Japan

Foreword by

Michio Morishima

Translated by

Douglas Anthony and Naomi Brown

Contents

General Editor's Foreword	ix
Introduction: Banking and Industry in Japan Michio Morishima	xi
Author's Preface (1983)	lix
PART I WHAT IS CORPORATE CAPITALISM?
1 The 'Companised' Society	3
'The company state' /	3
Companies and culture	6
The 'companisation' of education	9
The abnormal growth of company consciousness	11
2 The Logic of Corporate Capitalism	13
Organisations and people	13
Loyalty to the company	15
'The status of the company' and 'the status of the human being'	18
3 The 'Companism' System	21
Japanese-style management	21
Internalising into the company	24
The utility of the fiction of the corporate person	27
PART II THE JAPANESE COMPANY
4 The 'Corporatisation' of Shareownership	35
The dispersal of the private shareholder	35
The phenomenon of 'corporatisation'	37
The significance of companies owning shares in companies	40
Mutual shareownership	42
Institutional ownership and corporate ownership	44
5 Dividends and Share Prices	48
The erosion of dividends	48
Dividend policy in Japan	50
Why dividends do not increase	52

	The share price mechanism	55
	Demand, supply and share prices	57
	Growth in the practice of issuing shares at market price	58
	Exploiting high share prices	61
6	Takeovers	64
	The joint-stock company and takeovers	64
	The safe shareholder strategy	66
	Cornering shares: the Japanese way	68
	'Companism' and the prevention of takeovers	70
PART III MANAGERS
7	Who Rules Japan?	77
	An invisible structure	77
	The power structure of the business community	79
	Managers of large firms	81
	Large private shareowners	83
	From private capitalism to corporate capitalism	85
8	Managers and Shareholders	88
	The structure of top management in Japan	88
	Relationship with shareholders	91
	Managers and share prices	92
9	Managers and Employees	95
	Promoting managers from within	95
	Managers as workers' representatives?	97
	Employee participation in management	98
10	Representatives of the Company	101
	The basis of managerial authority	101
	Control based on corporate shareholders	102
	Representative of the company	103
	Representative directors	105
11	The Privilege and Position of Management	108
	Who determines management?	108
	Who becomes manager?	109
	A manager's wealth and income	111
PART IV RELATIONS BETWEEN FIRMS
12	Fixed Relations	117
	Problems with the inter-firm relationship theory	117

Trading between firms in Japan	118
The theory behind trade among firms	120
The factors making relationship rigid	122
13 Mutual Control and Mutual Dependency	125
Theory on mutual trade	125
Japan's reciprocal business	127
Trading within the industrial group	129
Mutual shareholdings	130
Elements which support 'companism'	131
14 Externalisation and Formation of Keiretsu	133
Externalisation by large firms	133
The realities of industry's keiretsu	134
The aim of forming a keiretsu	135
The tools of the keiretsu	137
Logic of externalisation	138
15 Exclusionary Character	141
Trade friction	141
The Japanese government's response	142
Opposition to financial liberalisation	144
Competition among firms	146
16 Institutional Framework	149
Relationships between companies	149
Anti-monopoly law	151
Japan's large corporation systems	153
Regulation of mutual shareholding	155
Index	159