

Management and Organizational Behavior

Burt Scanlan
University of Oklahoma

J. Bernard Keys
Tennessee Technological University

John Wiley & Sons, Inc.
New York Chichester Brisbane Toronto

Contents

I. Introduction

1. Management in Perspective	5
The Functions of Management	7
Management as a Distinctive Activity	9
Universality of Management	10
Managing and Human Resources	10
Contingency Nature of Management	12
Plan of This Book	12
Application Exercises and Cases	17
2. Historical Development of Management Thought	19
Early Development in Management Thought	20
Scientific Management Era	22
Human Relations Era	27
Classical Management Era	30
Modern Management Era	33
Application Exercises and Cases	42

II. Classical Management Concepts

3. A Systems Approach to Planning	47
What Planning Is Not	49
The Four Phases of the Planning Function	50
Phase I. Establishing the Goals and Objectives of the Organization	51
Phase II. Formulating Policies and Strategies to Carry Out the Objectives	56
Phase III. Developing Intermediate and Short-Range Plans	61
Phase IV. Statement of Detailed Procedures for Implementing Each Plan	63

Key Elements and Benefits of Successful Planning	65
Integrative View of Planning	66
Example of Corporate Planning	66
Application Exercises and Cases	71
4. Organization Through Departmentation	74
Elements and Functions of Organizations	74
The Development of an Organization	78
The Growth of Staff in the Organization Structure	81
Authority, Responsibility, and Accountability	88
The Steps in Organizing	91
Limitations to the Structural Study of Organizations	93
Application Exercises and Cases	96
5. Delegation—A Positive Approach to Management	99
A Positive Management Philosophy—Key to Effective Delegation	100
Authority and Power	103
The True Meaning of Managerial Delegation	110
What Delegation Is Not	112
Why Managers Do Not Always Delegate	114
Why Subordinates Do Not Always Accept Delegation	115
Application Exercises and Cases	118
6. The Organization in Operation	121
The Role of Staff in Modern Organizations	121
Types of Staff Authority	122
Conflict in Organizations	126
Span of Control	129
How Large Should the Span of Control Be?	134
Application Exercises and Cases	138
7. Managerial Problem Analysis and Decision Making	142
Decision Making—Four Essential Steps	145
Problem Analysis—A Systematic Approach	145
Developing Alternative Solutions	150
Analyzing Alternative Solutions	152
Implementing a Decision—A Plan For Action	154
Group Decision Making	160
Application Exercises and Cases	167
8. Organizational Dynamics	171
Scientific Management and Human Relations	171
Principles of Management	172
Bureaucracy and Enterprise	175

Blending Bureaucracy and Enterprise	180
Management by Objectives	186
Application Exercises and Cases	190

III. Organizational Behavior and Design

9. Interpersonal Behavior and Organizational Climate	199
Interpersonal Behavior	199
Establishing a Management Philosophy	203
Dealing With Interpersonal Conflict	205
Organizational Climate	209
Application Exercises and Cases	218
10. Human Motivation	222
Hierarchy of Human Needs	223
Incentives	239
Expectancy Theories	236
Managerial Implications of Motivation	241
Additional Observations on Motivation	244
Application Exercises and Cases	247
11. Organizational and Interpersonal Communications	251
The Communications Problem in Perspective	252
Communication and the Individual Manager	255
The Definition of Communications and an Overview of the Effective Communications Process	255
The Manager's Communication Environment	256
Information Side of the Communications Process	256
A Communications Transaction	259
The Importance of Listening	265
Barriers to Creating Understanding and How to Overcome Them	266
Organizational Problems in Establishing Effective Communication	268
Application Exercises and Cases	272
12. Job Design	277
Historical Approaches to Designing Jobs	277
Anticipated Advantages and Actual Results of the Historical Approach to Job Design	281
Determinates of Job Satisfaction and Productivity	282
Early Attempts at Solving the Job Design Problem	288
Job Enrichment	292
A Contingency Approach to Job Design	295
Integrating Behavioral Science Theory and Application	301
Application Exercises and Cases	308

13. Role and Function of the Group in Organizations	311
A Small Group Defined	312
Types or Kinds of Groups	313
Factors in Group Formation	313
A Model of Intragroup Behavior	318
Intergroup Behavior	326
Application Exercises and Cases	331
14. Contingency Approaches to Organizations	338
Patterns of Organizing	338
Choosing the Appropriate Organizational Form	340
Organization Structure	341
Design Principle	346
Design Logics	346
Organizational Adaptations	347
Application Exercises and Cases	356
IV. The Management of Human Resources
15. Developing an Organizational and Leadership Philosophy	367
Concepts of People and the Approaches to Management They Suggest	368
The Complex Person Concept	371
How Organizations Get Results Through People	372
The Work of a Leader	374
Leadership Skills	378
The Activities of Successful Leaders	379
Application Exercises and Cases	384
16. Leadership Styles	387
Normative Theories of Leadership	387
Contingency Approaches to Leadership	397
Application Exercises and Cases	412
17. Coaching, Developing, and Controlling	416
Subordinate Performance	416
Analysis of Performance	417
Gaining Mutual Agreement	419
Reasons for Poor Performance	422
Some Problems with Coaching and Appraisal Systems	422
Fundamental Principles of a Good Coaching and Development System	424
Performance Review—A Critical Issue	426
Implementing a Results Approach	429
Human Aspects of Managerial Control	431

Fundamental Guidelines of Effective Control Administration	434
Application Exercises and Cases	437
18. Management and Organizational Development	440
The Management of Change	441
Management Development	442
Total Organizational Development (OD)	446
Methods of Behavioral Intervention	448
Steps in Behavioral Intervention	451
The Grid Approach to Organization Development	453
An Integrated View of OD Implementation	460
Human Resources Planning and Development	462
Application Exercises and Cases	466
V. Management of Operations
19. Operations Management	475
Operations Management Activities and Decisions	477
The Product Life Cycle Approach	487
Application Exercises and Cases	494
20. Quantitative Decision Making and Operations Research	498
Models	499
The Management Decision Environment	500
Decision Support and the Computer	501
Product Design and Development, Using Cost-Volume-Profit Models	501
Forecasting, Using Correlation Analysis	505
Resource Allocation with Linear Programming	508
Decision Trees	513
Operational Planning Activities	515
The Managerial Role	517
Advantages and Limitations of Quantitative Models	518
Application Exercises and Cases	521
21. Management Information Systems and the Computer	524
The Evolution of Management Information Systems	524
The Developing Uses of MIS	527
Elements in an Effective MIS	528
The Use of Computers in MIS	530
Organizational Problems Created by MIS	535
Behavioral Problems in MIS	539
Preventing Dysfunctional Behavior in MIS	542
Application Exercises and Cases	545

22.	Controlling Operations	548
	Definition and Purpose of Control	548
	Elements of Control	549
	Control in the Operation of Productive Systems	554
	Budgeting	563
	Planning-Programming-Budgeting Systems (PPBS)	566
	Zero-Base Budgeting	566
	Projects and Scheduling Control Devices	567
	Fundamental Guidelines of Effective Control
	Administration	569
	Application Exercises and Cases	572
VI.	Goal-Oriented Management Systems
23.	Social Responsibilities of Management	577
	What is Corporate Social Responsibility?	577
	Research Findings Regarding Social Responsibilities of Businessmen	582
	Developing a Strategic Posture Toward Social Responsibility	586
	Areas of Managerial Response to Social Responsibility	589
	Patterns of Social Action Programs	590
	The Social Audit: A Strategy for Defining and Implementing Social Responsibility	592
	Application Exercises and Cases	596
24.	MBO—An Integrative System of Management	601
	A Systems Approach to MBO	603
	Setting Objectives and Developing Strategic Plans	604
	Assessing the External Environment	606
	Developing Action Plans	606
	Implementing Plans Through Leadership and Delegation	608
	Measuring and Rewarding Performance, in View of the Objectives	612
	Budgeting and Control	613
	External Inputs from Managerial and Organizational Development	614
	Application Exercises and Cases	622
25.	A Futuristic Look at Management Systems	626
	Trends in Society	626
	Multinational Corporations	631
	Social Changing Needs	636
	Management Practices of the Future	640
	Application Exercises and Cases	649
	Index	653