

ROBERT MILLWARD
DAVID PARKER
LESLIE ROSENTHAL
MICHAEL T. SUMNER
NEVILLE TOPHAM

Public sector economics

LONGMAN
London and New York

Contents

EDITORS' PREFACE		viii
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS		x
CHAPTER ONE
Introduction	Robert Millward and Michael T. Sumner	1
CHAPTER TWO
The incentive effects of taxation	Michael T. Sumner	6
1. Introduction		6
2. Taxation and business decisions		8
Introduction		8
Factor inputs		9
Discriminatory factor taxation		15
Locational decisions and regional factor intensities		19
Financial decisions		22
Prices and products		27
Managerial objectives and tax shifting		30
3. Taxation and household behaviour		35
Introduction		35
The supply of labour		36
Sales taxation		50
Reform of the personal tax base		53
Distributional impacts		62
4. Conclusions		65
Notes		67
References		70
CHAPTER THREE
Subsidies to the personal sector	Leslie Rosenthal	78
1. Introduction		78
2. Types of subsidy		79
Price reduction systems		80

Gifts and voucher systems	81
All-or-nothing subsidy systems	85
3. Subsidies, benefits and consumer surplus	87
Marshallian approaches	88
Hicksian approaches	90
4. Redistribution and interdependence	95
5. Subsidies versus cash transfers	100
6. The measurement of subsidies	103
7. Applications: Subsidies on housing and food	107
Housing subsidies	108
Food subsidies	118
8. Concluding remarks	122
Notes	123
References	124

CHAPTER FOUR

Local government economics   Neville Topham   129

1. Introduction	129
2. The assignment problem	130
The theory of clubs	130
Decentralisation	134
3. Tiebout and non-Tiebout worlds	137
Local government as a shopping analogue	137
Capitalisation	142
Spillovers	148
A non-Tiebout world	152
A portfolio approach to the distribution of outputs	153
4. Property taxes	156
History	156
Old view	158
New view	161
Incidence studies	165
The property tax as a user price	166
Equity and efficiency	168
5. Grants-in-aid	173
A taxonomy	173
Objectives	176
Categorical equity	177
Equalising grants	181
Impacts of grants on spending	185
6. Median voter models	187
7. Concluding remarks	190
Notes	191
References	193

CHAPTER FIVE

Public and private enterprise: comparative behaviour and relative efficiency Robert Millward and David M. Parker

199

1. Introduction	199
2. Economic efficiency	200
3. Economic organisation: contractual forms and ownership	208
Firms versus markets	209
Incentives within firms	211
Agents, principals and incentives for management	213
The ownership function in large private sector companies	215
The ownership features of public enterprise	217
4. The behaviour of the public firm	218
The origins and stated economic objectives of public ownership	219
Bureaucracy	221
Ballot box models	223
5. The measurement of efficiency in firms	225
Productivity	225
Costs	229
Profits	233
6. Empirical comparisons of public and private firms	235
Productivity in transport	236
Productivity in public and private industry in the UK	239
The cost of electric power in the USA	241
Studies of unit costs in water supply, refuse collection and other areas	244
Market structure versus ownership	249
Pricing, politics and profitability	252
7. Conclusions	257
Notes	259
References and further reading	264
 AUTHOR INDEX	 275
SUBJECT INDEX	280