

JAPAN AND PROTECTION

The growth of protectionist sentiment
and the Japanese response

SYED JAVED MASWOOD

TECHNISCHE HOCHSCHULE DARMSTADT
Fachbereich 1
Gesamtbibliothek
Betriebswirtschaftslehre
Inventar-Nr. :	40.447
Abstell-Nr. :	B.08/98
Sachgebiete:	9.3.3.3
	9.3.5

ROUTLEDGE

London and New York

and

NISSAN INSTITUTE FOR JAPANESE STUDIES

University of Oxford

---

Contents

---

List of Figures	ix
List of Tables	x
General editor's preface	xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
1. Introduction	1
<hr/>
Part One: Theoretical framework: regimes and system support
2. Political realism and international regimes	9
Introduction	9
Hegemonic-stability thesis and its critics	15
3. The post-war liberal international economic order	29
Costs and benefits of regime maintenance	29
The post-war liberal trading system	36
Japan as system supporter	40
<hr/>
Part Two: Japan and system support
4. The US-Japan auto dispute	49
Background to the auto dispute	49
The post-war development of the Japanese and American auto industries	56
The auto dispute and its resolution: an account	62
Analysis of Japanese motivations	77
Conclusion	85
5. Trade imbalance and import promotion	89
The US-Japan trade imbalance and regime instability	89
The nature of the US-Japan trade imbalance	97
Japanese market-opening measures	102
The Japanese distribution system as an import barrier	114
Office of the trade ombudsman	119
Exchange rates and trade imbalance	121
Conclusion	130
6. Industrial restructuring and demand expansion	135
Foreign demand and Japanese economic growth	135

Domestic demand and exports	142
Demand expansion measures	152
Conclusion	166
7. Japan and Asia-Pacific	169
The regional-global divide in Japanese foreign policy	169
Development strategies of ANICs and ASEAN	175
Japan's regional role and system stability	183
Conclusion	192
<hr/>
8. Conclusion	195
Notes	209
Bibliography	226
Index	235