

The Carolingians and the written word

ROSAMOND McKITTERICK

Lecturer in History, University of Cambridge, and Fellow of Newnham College

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge
New York Port Chester
Melbourne Sydney

Contents

List of maps and tables	page x
Preface	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
Abbreviations	xiv
 1 THE SPOKEN AND THE WRITTEN WORD	 1
I Introduction	1
II The question of language	7
 2 LAW AND THE WRITTEN WORD	 23
I The use of writing in Carolingian government	25
II The leges	37
III The production and transmission of written law: the case of Lex Salica	40
IV The use of writing in the legal process: the evidence of the laws	60
 3 A LITERATE COMMUNITY: THE EVIDENCE OF THE CHARTERS	 77
I The importance of charter evidence	77
II The charters of St Gall	79
III The survival of written culture in Alemannia and Rhaetia	81
IV The foundation of St Gall	83
V The script of the St Gall region	85
VI Charter production and the process of redaction	90
Charter structure	90
The process of redaction	94
VII The context of legal transactions	98
The witness lists	98
Centres of charter production	104
	vii

VIII	The status and office of scribes	115
	The cancellarii	115
	The problem of Gerichtsschreiber	118
	The handwriting of the St Gall charters	120
	The significance of the distribution of scribes	124
IX	Charter production elsewhere in the Frankish kingdoms and its implications	126
4	THE PRODUCTION AND POSSESSION OF BOOKS: AN ECONOMIC DIMENSION	135
	I Values and prices for books	135
	II The cost of production	138
	Membranes	138
	Pigments	141
	Binding	147
	III Books as wealth	148
	IV Gift giving and exchange	155
	v The possession of books	157
5	THE ORGANIZATION OF WRITTEN KNOWLEDGE	165
	I The establishment of monastic libraries	166
	II The development of Frankish libraries: evidence of the earliest catalogues	169
	The libraries of Fulda, Würzburg, Charlemagne and St Wandrille	169
	West Frankish libraries: the problems of the evidence and the example of St Riquier	175
	III The systematization of library catalogues: the east
	Frankish examples	178
	Reichenau	179
	St Gall	182
	Lorsch	185
	Structure of the Lorsch catalogues and its influence	188
	Cologne	191
	The acquisition of books: the example of Murbach	192
	Smaller inventories of books	195
	IV The origins of library catalogues and their arrangement	196
	Principles of organization	196
	The question of insular influence	198
	The role of the De viris illustribus , the De libris recipiendis and other early mediaeval bibliographical guides	200
	Carolingian bibliographical handbooks	206

6	THE LITERACY OF THE LAITY	211
1	The education of the laity	212
	Continuity from the Merovingian into the Carolingian period	212
	Merovingian and Carolingian education: the evidence of the saints' lives	216
	The role of women in Carolingian education	223
II	Lay culture and the question of audience	227
	The audience for Carolingian Latin poetry	227
	The audience for written German poetry	232
	The audience for history	236
	Lay ownership of history books and historical miscellanies	238
	The audience for hagiography	241
	Lay use of practical texts	244
III	Lay patronage and the ownership of books	244
	Introduction	244
	Lay libraries: the examples of Eberhard of Friuli and Eccard of Mâcon	245
	Courtiers' libraries	250
	Manuscripts with lay associations	252
	Lay borrowers from ecclesiastical libraries	261
IV	Lay piety and the uses of literacy	266
	Epilogue	271
	Index of manuscripts	275
	General index	281