

Greta Olson

Criminals as Animals from Shakespeare to Lombroso

DE GRUYTER

Contents

Acknowledgements — VII

List of Illustrations — XI

List of Abbreviations — XII

1 Introduction: Tracing the History of the Criminal-Animal Metaphor — 1

Part I: Creating ‘Criminal Beasts’ in Early Modern Literature and Law

- 2 Catching Conies with Thomas Harman, Robert Greene, and Thomas Dekker — 41
- 3 Richard III’s Animalistic Criminal Body — 85
- 4 Of a Howling Murderer – The Duke of Malfi — 109
- 5 Ben Jonson’s Comedies of Gulling Rogues — 131

Part II: Humanizing Animals and ‘Animalizing’ the Lower Orders during the Long Eighteenth Century

Introduction to Part II: Eighteenth-Century Changes in the Criminal-Animal Trope — 157

- 6 Colonialism and the ‘Criminal Beast’ in Robinson Crusoe and Gulliver’s Travels — 167
- 7 William Hogarth’s The Four Stages of Cruelty – Sympathizing with Animals and Denigrating the Lower Orders as Beasts — 189
- 8 The Prisoner as Suffering Animal – Caleb Williams’s Revision of the Criminal-Animal Metaphor — 217

Part III: Reinstating the ‘Criminal Beast’ during the Nineteenth Century

Introduction to Part III: The Nineteenth Century’s Delineation of the Criminal Class — 245

9 Charles Dickens’s Contradictions — 251

10 The Criminal-Animal Metaphor and Lombrosian Criminology — 275

11 Coda — 303

Bibliography — 315

Index — 341