
Made in America
Regaining the Productive Edge

Michael L. Dertouzos
Richard K. Lester
Robert M. Solow
and
The MIT Commission on Industrial Productivity

The MIT Press
Cambridge, Massachusetts
London, England

Contents

Preface ix
The Commission Staff xi

1

Introduction 1
Semiconductors, Computers, and Copiers 9
Commercial Aircraft 11
Consumer Electronics 12
Steel 14
Chemicals 15
Textiles 16
Automobiles 18
Machine Tools 20
Education and Training 21

2

The United States in the World Economy 23
A Changing World 23
Productivity and Productivity Growth 26
Manufacturing Productivity 30
Productive Performance 32
Productive Performance and the Trade Deficit 33
Productive Performance and the Macroeconomic Environment 35
Why Manufacturing Matters 39
Diagnosing the Problem 42

3

Outdated Strategies 46

The Mass-Production System 47

Parochialism 49

4

Short Time Horizons 53

5

Technological Weaknesses in Development and Production 67

Designing for Manufacturability and Quality 69

Teamwork in the Product-Development Process 70

A Focus on the Manufacturing Process 72

Continuous Improvement 74

Who Is to Blame? 77

6

Neglect of Human Resources 81

Patterns of Education and Training 83

Formal Schooling 84

Training in the Firm 87

Education and Training Patterns 88

Retraining 90

Future Challenges 92

7

Failures of Cooperation 94

Cooperation within the Firm 95

Labor-Management Relations 98

Vertical Linkages 99

Horizontal Linkages and the Public Good 105

8

Government and Industry at Cross-Purposes 108

Too Much or Too Little? 108

Regulatory Policy 110

The Technological Infrastructure 112
National Defense 114

9

Emerging Patterns of Best Industrial Practice 117
Simultaneous Improvement in Quality, Cost, and Delivery 118
Staying Close to the Customer 119
Closer Relations with Suppliers 120
Using Technology for Strategic Advantage 121
Flatter and Less Compartmentalized Organizations 122
Innovative Human-Resource Policies 124
Obstacles to the Diffusion of Best Practices 126

10

Imperatives for a More Productive America 129
Long-Term Trends 129
Five Imperatives 131
Focusing on the New Fundamentals of Manufacturing 132
Cultivating a New Economic Citizenship in the Work Force 134
Blending Cooperation and Individualism 138
Learning to Live in the World Economy 141
Providing for the Future 143

11

Strategies for Industry, Labor, and Government 147
Strategies for Industry 148
Strategies for Labor 151
Strategies for Government 151

12

How Universities Should Change 156
Changes in the Engineering Curriculum 159
Changes in the Management Curriculum 160
Research 163
Awareness 165

13

Conclusion 166