

*Computer Graphics for Architects,
Engineers,
and Environmental Designers*

An introduction to computer graphics for architects, engineers, landscape architects, land use planners, and environmental consultants

D. Dayton Reuter

HLuHB Darmstadt

15532327

Contents

- Preface ix

- Chapter One: The Emerging Digital Culture 1
 - Preface 2
 - The New Digital Lifestyle 3
 - The Primary Forces of Change 6
 - A New Faustian Deal 9
 - Bibliography 12

- Chapter Two: Types of e-Graphics 13
 - Preface 14
 - Introduction 15
 - Building Blocks of e-Graphics 15
 - The Simplicity of e-Graphics 28
 - Bibliography 28

- Chapter Three: Basic Elements of e-Graphics 29
 - Preface 30
 - Introduction 31
 - Color in e-Graphics 31
 - File Formats in e-Graphics 38
 - Bibliography 57

- Chapter Four: Tools of e-Graphics 59
 - Preface 60
 - Introduction 61
 - Software 61
 - Hardware 72
 - Summary 87
 - Bibliography 87

- Chapter Five: Processes of e-Graphics 89
 - Preface 90

Technology Influences the Approach	91
Conceptual Versus Technical Content	94
The Digital Production Process	98
Summary	102
Bibliography	102
Chapter Six: Methods of e-Graphics	103
• Preface	104
Introduction	105
Components of e-Graphics Communications	105
Summary	143
Bibliography	143
Chapter Seven: Crafting the e-Graphics Experience	145
• Preface	146
Introduction	147
Producing e-Graphics	147
Experiencing e-Graphics	172
Managing Workflow and Distributing e-Graphics	193
Summary	202
Bibliography	203
Chapter Eight: e-Graphics and Professional Ethics	205
• Preface	206
Introduction	207
Computing and Professional Ethics	207
Summary	216
Bibliography	216
Glossary	217
• Preface	218
Glossary of Terms	219
Index	239
• Preface	240
Index	241

Note—This document contains references to online resources located on the Internet. Unfortunately, Internet resources tend to change frequently and references to those resources may become outdated or stop functioning. Any inconvenience in this regard is an unavoidable situation.