

Growth, Distribution, and Prices

Stephen A. Marglin

HARVARD UNIVERSITY PRESS

Cambridge, Massachusetts, and London, England 1984

Contents

1 Introduction 1

PART ONE

Growth and Distribution with Homogeneous Capital and Output

- 2 The Neoclassical Approach 23
- 3 The Neo-Marxian Approach 52
- 4 The Neo-Keynesian Approach 69
- 5 Neo-Marxian and Neo-Keynesian Conceptions of the Labor Market 96
- 6 Generalizing the Classics: The Cambridge Saving Equation 110
- 7 Foundations for the Cambridge Saving Equation 143
- 8 Some Hybrid Models 155
- 9 Variable Proportions 167
- 10 Marginal Productivity and Marginal-Productivity Theory 215

PART TWO

General Equilibrium: The Problems of Heterogeneous Capital and Output

- 11 The Basic Models in the Multiple-Good Context 231
- 12 Multiple Technologies: The Reswitching Debate 275
- 13 Continuous Substitution 284
- 14 Monopoly and Degree-of-Monopoly Theory 297

PART THREE

Toward an Understanding of Capitalism

- 15 An Overall Summary 311
- 16 Testing the Models: Energy and Employment 337
- 17 Alternative Theories of Saving 351
- 18 Distinguishing Saving Theories Empirically 393
- 19 Criticism and Evaluation 456
- 20 A Synthesis of Marx and Keynes 487
- 21 Final Words 524
- Notes on the Literature 529
- References 548
- Index 561