

Alfred A. Knopf, New York

Gary S. Becker

University of Chicago

ECONOMIC THEORY

With the assistance of MICHAEL GROSSMAN and ROBERT T. MICHAEL

Contents

chapter 1	Introduction	1
1	What Is Economics? The Role of Prices	1 3
2	Supply and Demand Analysis	4

PART ONE Demand Analysis

chapter 2	The Scarcity Principle	11
3	Definition of Demand, Elasticity of Demand	11 12
4	The Opportunity Set Income Effects	14 16
5	Substitution Effects	19
chapter 3	Indifference Curves	25
6	Rational Behavior The Indifference System	25 26
7	Demand Curves Engel Curves	29 31
8	Combined Demand Curves Market Demand and Engel Curves	35 38

9	Differences in Tastes	42
*10	Revised Approach to Consumer Choice	45
	Environmental Variables	47
	Appendix	48
11	Utility Analysis	50
chapter 4	Uncertainty	57
12	Uncertainty	57
	Expected Utility Theory	58
*13	Insurance and States of the World	61
14	Uncertainty and Search	65

PART TWO

Supply of Products

chapter 5	Fundamentals of Supply	69
15	The Firm and Profit Maximization	69
	Firm and Market Supply Curves	71
16	Marginal and Average Cost	74
	Economic Rent	77
17	Short and Long Run	79
18	External Effects	84
chapter 6	Competition and Monopoly	89
19	The Comparative Statistics of Competitive Equilibrium	89
	The Stability of Equilibrium	91
20	Monopoly	94
	"Natural" Monopoly	95
21	Collusion	98
22	Price Discrimination	102
23	Non-price Rationing	106

PART THREEProduction and the Demand for Factors

chapter 7	Production by the Firm and Industry	113
24	Production Functions	113
	The Cost-Minimizing Conditions	115
	Appendix	117
25	Cost Curves	119
	Increasing and Decreasing Costs	120
26	Technological Change	124
	Appendix	128
*27	Induced Technological Change	129
chapter 8	Demand for Factors	135
28	Derived Demand for Factors of Production	135
	Fixed Quantities of Other Factors	136
	Fixed Prices of Other Factors	137
29	Substitution Between Factors	139
	Appendix	142
30	Substitution Between Industries: A Numerical Example	144
	A Single Industry	144
	Two Industries	146
31	Substitution Between Industries: A General Model	149
	Appendix	150

PART FOURSupply of Factors of Production

chapter 9	Human Capital	159
32	Land, Labor, and Capital	159
	Population	160
33	Labor Force Participation	162

34	Nonmarket Activities	165
	Occupational Choice	166
	Appendix	169
35	Investment in Training	172
36	Differences in Abilities and Opportunities	177
	The Distribution of Earnings	179
	Appendix	180
chapter 10	Accumulation of Capital over Time
37	Consumption and Savings	184
38	The Rate of Growth in Consumption	191
	Appendix	193
*39	The Determination of Interest Rates	195
	The Rate of Investment = Savings	200
*40	Growth Paths	202
	Appendix	204
	General Problems	210
	Bibliography—Reading List	214
	Index	219