

INTW - 1111

Titel Trade Preferences
for Developing Countries

Hr. TRACY MURRAY

*Graduate School of Business Administration
New York University*

TECHNISCHE HOCHSCHULE
DARMSTADT

Inv.-Nr.:

H 6225

WIRTSCHAFTSPOLITIK
(VWL II)

M

Contents

General Editor's Preface	ix
Preface	xi
Acknowledgments	xii

PART 1 INTRODUCTION

1 The Generalised System of Preferences: Evolution from Concept to Fact	5
Trade problems of the developing countries	6
The failure of GATT	9
Trade and development in the United Nations	11
Political issues surrounding preferences	14
2 Economic Impact of Tariff Preferences	18
Benefits for developing countries	21
Importance of tariffs as a barrier to trade	23

PART 2 OPERATION OF THE SYSTEM OF TARIFF PREFERENCES

3 Developing Countries which Benefit from G.S.P.	33
The principle of self-election	33
Reciprocity under the U.S. G.S.P.	36
E.E.C. Associates and the G.S.P.	50
The least developed and the G.S.P.	51
4 Product Coverage	53
Developing-country exports and the G.S.P.	54
G.S.P. tariff incentives	58
Major developing-country suppliers	59
5 Safeguard Measures	63
Ceiling systems of the E.E.C. and Japan	64
E.E.C. administration of G.S.P. trade	74
Japan's administration of G.S.P. trade	77
Safeguard measures of the United States	78
6 Rules of Origin	84
Direct consignment	84
Documentary evidence	86
Minimal processing	86
Cumulative origin	93

7	Evaluation of the G.S.P. in Operation	95
	Effective product coverage	96
	Trade benefits under the G.S.P.	101
	Impact on donor-country production and employment	108
	Conclusions and additional qualifications	111
	PART 3 OTHER ISSUES RELATED TO THE G.S.P.
8	The Evolving Trade Relations of the E.E.C.	119
	Special arrangements predating the G.S.P.	120
	Modifications in the Association arrangements	125
	Changes in the G.S.P. schemes	126
	An enlarged European free-trade area	128
	The erosion of G.S.P. trade benefits	129
9	M.F.N. Tariff Reductions and the G.S.P.	136
	Strategy to protect the G.S.P.	136
	Offsetting benefits from M.F.N. tariff reductions	140
10	The G.S.P. and the 'New International Economic Order'	147
	What is the value of the G.S.P.?	148
	Prospects for an improved G.S.P.	150
	Alternatives to stimulate manufactured exports	152
	Elements of the 'new international economic order'	156
	The future: confrontation or co-operation?	162
	Notes and References	165
	Bibliography	169
	Index	171