

296

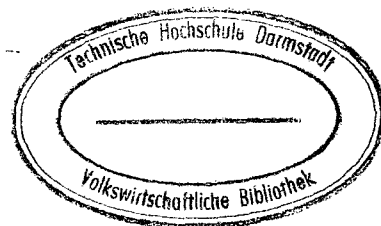

World Bank Discussion Papers

Reforming the Energy Sector in Transition Economies

Selected Experience and Lessons

Dale Gray

The World Bank
Washington, D.C.

VB TU Darmstadt

51661907

CONTENTS

	Page
Foreword	v
Abstract	vii
Acknowledgements	ix
Summary and Conclusions	xi
1. Background and Characteristics of the Energy Sector at the Beginning of the Reform Process	1
2. Energy Demand and Efficiency	4
3. Major Energy Production Issues in Central and Eastern Europe and Former Soviet Union	9
4. Changing Structure of East-West Energy Trade	17
5. Energy Pricing	21
6. Energy Sector Revenues and Finances	29
7. Experience in Energy Reform Commercialization, Privatization and Links to the Macroeconomy	36
8. Lessons, Conclusions and Approaches to Improve Efficiency of Energy Sector Reform	47
References	63
Annexes
1 Energy Consumption, GDP Growth and Energy Intensity 1985-1994	65
2 Forecasts of Energy Demand for FSU	73
3 East-West Energy Trade	81
4 Status of Country Strategies and Investment Requirements for Nuclear Safety (G-7 Related Report)	91
5 Introducing Utility Company Debt and Financial Controls on Utilities	97
6 Major Differences in Energy Sector Conditions and Policy Reform in China, Compared to FSU and CEE Experiences	105