

Strategic Choice and Path-Dependency in Post-Socialism

Institutional Dynamics in the Transformation Process

---

Editors

Jerzy Hausner

Krakow Academy of Economics Poland

Bob Jessop

Lancaster University England

Klaus Nielsen

Roskilde University Denmark

Edward Elgar

Contents

---

Tables and Figures	x
Contributors	xi
Preface	xiii
Introduction
1. Institutional Change in Post-Socialism Klaus Nielsen, Bob Jessop, and Jerzy Hausner	3
Path Dependency and Path-Shaping Approaches	5
'Big Bang' vs Gradualism	8
Marketization vs Democratization	11
Neo-Liberalism vs Other 'Models'	16
Current Implementation Problems	18
The Fiscal Crisis and the Breakdown of the Financial System	21
Privatization and Restructuring	23
Representation and Mediation of Organized Economic Interests	26
Reorientation of Transformation Strategies	30
The Plan of the Book	30
Notes	40
References	41
 Part One: Institutional Design, Strategic Dilemmas, and the Dynamics of Post-Socialist Transformations
2. Designing Institutions for East European Transitions Claus Offe	47
The Dual Nature of Institutions	47
Modes of Institutional Stability and Change	52
Critique	62
Notes	64
References	65

3. Not by Design: The Myth of Designer Capitalism in Eastern Europe David Stark	67
From Transition to Transformation	68
Paths of Extrication and Possibilities of Transformation	71
Recombinant Property in East European Capitalism	72
A Market Economy or Modern Capitalism?	79
Acknowledgements	80
References	80
4. Reflections on the Fiscal Crisis of Post-Communist States John L. Campbell	84
Theories of Fiscal Crisis in Capitalist and Socialist States	85
Toward a Theory of Fiscal Crisis in Post-Communist States	90
An Institutional Conclusion	104
Acknowledgements	106
Notes	106
References	107
5. Alternative Scenarios for Central Europe Hans van Zon	113
A Plea for a Comprehensive Approach	113
The Quest for Economic Viability	116
The Quest for Social and Political Cohesion	120
The Quest for a Secure and Stable International Environment	121
Alternative Scenarios	123
Concluding Remarks	126
Notes	126
References	128

Part Two: Institutional Dynamics of the Transition in Poland

6. The Free Market or a Social Contract as Bases for Systemic Transformation Tadeusz Kowalik	131
The Turn to the Market	132
The Background to 'Shock Therapy'	133
The Shock in Practice	135
The Pursuit of Privatization	137
Alternative Scenarios	140

The Polish Road to Prosperity and Justice	142
Swedish Social Liberals and Polish Conservatives	144
Feasibility	145
Acknowledgement	148
References	148
 7. Financial Crisis of the Post-Socialist State: the
Polish Case Stanislaw Owskiak	149
The New System of Public Finances	150
Problems of Systemic Transformation	151
The Financial Crisis of the State	153
Quantitative Characteristics of the Financial
Crisis of the State	154
The 'Transitional Deficit' and the Financial
Crisis of the State	159
Concluding Remarks	163
Notes	166
References	166
 8. From Corporatism to ... Corporatism: The Transformation of Interest Representation in Poland
Jan Gorniak and Jaroslaw Jerschina	168
The Changing Nature of Corporatism	168
Socialist Corporatism as it Was	170
The Economic Reforms and their Results, 1990-1993	175
Public Opinion as a Determinant of the Processes
of Transformation	178
Unions and Reforms. What Negotiation System
do They Want?	180
Political Parties and Economic Reforms	181
The External Factors: the World Bank, IMF, and EC	186
Concluding Remarks	187
Acknowledgement	188
References	189

Part Three: Institutional Dynamics of the Transition in Czechoslovakia

9. Transition to a Market Economy in the Former
Czechoslovakia Jan Adam	193
Czechoslovakia before 1990	194
Transformation Strategy	196
Monetary and Fiscal Policy	199
Wage Policy	201

Employment Policy	202
State Enterprises and Shock Treatment	204
Foreign Economic Relations	208
Controversy over the Strategy of Transformation	209
Concluding Remarks	212
Acknowledgements	214
Notes	214
References	215
 10. Transformation of the Czech and Slovak Economies
1990-1992: Design, Problems, Costs Pavel Mertlík	218
Macro-Economic Stabilization	218
Liberalization of Markets	219
Small and Large Privatization Process	221
Some Pitfalls of the Voucher Privatization	225
Costs of the Great Neo-liberal Experiment	227
References	229
 11. Can the Czech Republic Develop a Negotiated Economy? Ludek Rychetnik	230
Systemic Vacuum	230
Neo-liberalism vs a Negotiated Economy and the Vision of the Future	233
Structural and Cultural Prerequisites of a Negotiated Economy	235
From the 'Velvet Revolution' to the Split of the State and Social and Political Pluralism	236
The Emerging Economic and Political Order	239
Conclusions: Negotiated Transformation in spite of Confrontational Polity?	250
Acknowledgements	255
Notes	256
References	256

Part Four: Institutional Dynamics of the Transition in Hungary

12. Reforming Alliances: Labour, Management and State Bureaucracy in Hungary's Economic Transformation Laszló Bruszt	261
Three Approaches to Transformative Politics Workers, Managers and State Bureaucrats in Transition	265
Market Reforms in the New Regime	274

Gradualism and Demobilization: Conclusions	282
Acknowledgement	284
References	285
 13. Centralization, Re-Nationalization, and Redistri- bution: Government's Role in Changing Hungary's Ownership Structure Éva Voszka	 287
Spontaneous Privatization	288
Centralized Privatization	290
Decentralized Privatization	293
Implementation of Re-Nationalization	296
Scope of Re-Nationalization and its Direct Consequences	298
Redistribution of State Property	300
Short-Term Perspectives or: What can be Brought about by Re-Nationalization?	303
Notes	305
References	307
 14. Post-Socialist Transformation in Hungary: Entering a Second Stage? Judit Habuda	 309
The Collapse of the Socialist System in Hungary	310
The Transformation Strategy of the New Government	312
Completing the First Stage of Reform	314
Economic Policy Discussions on Privatization, Pre-Sale Restructuring and Bankruptcies	316
The Financial Crisis of the State	319
References	324
 Index	 325